VICTIM OF STORM-TOSSED STRAIT

Towboat Henry Foss which sank today after striking rock at Beaver Point, Salt Spring Island, was former John Cudahy, used by U.S. Army engineers in Alaskan waters during the Second World War.

She was employed regularly by her owners towing logs out of Ladysmith to Washington State ports. She was 90 feet long and owned by the Foss Launch and Tug Co., Tacoma, Seattle and Port Angeles.

Ottawa 'Baffled' On Ferry—Bonner

OTTAWA (CP)—Attorney-General Bonner of British Columbia said today the federal government is not indifferent to the problems which will be created by the CPR's plan to cancel its Vancouver-Victoria ferry service Feb. 25.

He said in an interview after a meeting with Prime Minister Diefenbaker that "how far the federal government's interest can be translated into a solution still is a subject of conversation."

not indifferent but is baffled at the moment on how to approach the problem," Mr. Bonner said.

One of Mr. Bonner's arguments is that the CPR should regard its Vancouver-Victoria and Vancouver-Nanaimo ferry services as a single service. Any losses on the Vancouver-Victoria service in winter were offset by profits made on the Vancouver-Nanaimo run, he said.

Where Are The Mounties?

HAVANA—Cuba says the Mounties have arrived, but the Mounties in Ottawa say they haven't. Cuban Defence Minister Augusto Martinez says six RCMP have arrived to reorganize his country's rural police force into a highly-mobile 2,000-man force using jeeps, helicopters and horses.

But in Ottawa today RCMP liaison officer Insp. M. J. Keough was reported as saying, "I don't know anything about that."

He denied that the force had loaned Cuba the six officers.

B.C. Coast Probed In Big Oil Rush

OTTAWA (CP)—Steadily mounting applications for oil and gas exploration rights in Canada's Arctic archipelago totalling 60,000,000 acres at mid-afternoon today, the northern affairs department reported.

The figure may reach 100,000,000 acres by Monday, one source suggested, as North American oil companies unleash a barrage of applications.

Earlier today, Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton said that 10 companies had applied by 11 a.m. for permits covering 50,000,000 acres, including some on the west coast.

Richfield Corporation applied for an exploration permit on lands underlying the waters in the vicinity of Graham Island (one of the Queen Charlottes) off the coast of British Columbia and Canadian Homestead Oils Limited for one under the Fraser River delta. There are about 500,000 acres in the two areas applied for.

Mr. Hamilton said in the Commons that the applications have all been made within the last month, but that the permits have not been granted.

Lone Survivor Rescued After 4 Hours in Sea

By MONTE ROBERTS

Six towboatmen perished when the Port Angeles-based tug Henry Foss struck a rock and sank during a 70-mile-per-hour gale near Beaver Point, Salt Spring Island, about 4 a.m. today.

Only one crew member survived immersion in the icy, gale-whipped waters.

The tug went down so quickly she could not even get a wireless message away.

The victims died after losing precarious grips on a capsized lifeboat.

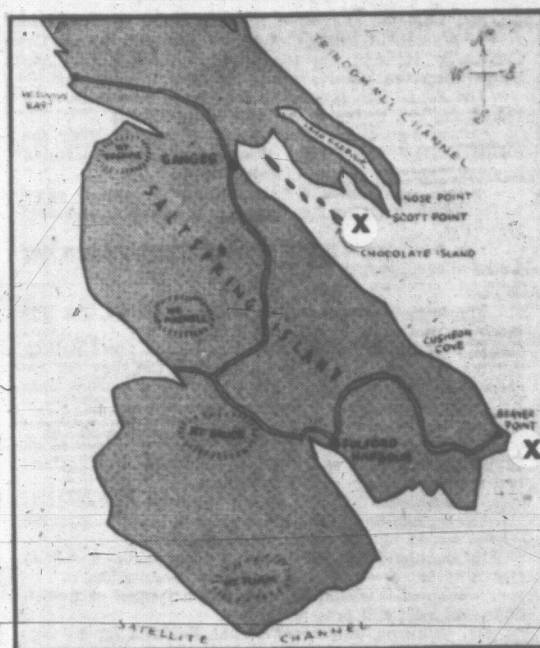

Beaver Point is about halfway between Fulford Harbor and Ganges Harbor.

Lone survivor is the chief engineer, Edward Hanson, 313 East Twelfth, Port Angeles, recovering from severe shock and exposure in Ganges Medical Centre.

He was picked up by the ferry Cy Peck, after more than four hours clinging to the upturned lifeboat.

Dead are: Capt. Warren Waterman, 47, master; Lawrence Berg, 56, mate; Martin Gullstein, 51, assistant engineer; Oswald H. Sorenson, 47, deckhand; Richard T. Lothian, deckhand, and Erick W. Danielson, 60, cook, all of Port Angeles.

Lothian was fished from the water at the same time as Hanson, but was dead on arrival at the Ganges hospital.

MAP SHOWS where Port Angeles-based tug Henry Foss struck rock, capsized and sank near Beaver Point, Salt Spring Island, early today. Lone survivor was found near Chocolate Island, at the mouth of Ganges Harbor, about eight miles from Beaver Point.

Lifeboat Quickly Capsized by Wind

When the tug struck, inky darkness, the crew managed to get their lifeboat into the water, but the tremendous seas and winds capsized it almost at once.

The men strove to hang on, but as the cold ate into them, their hands became numb and helpless.

The seas plucked them from the lifeboat, one by one, until only Hanson remained.

Lothian was found floating about 100 yards from the lifeboat. He was alive, but died before reaching hospital.

The Cy Peck was on the way out of Ganges Harbor shortly after 8 a.m. today when a lookout spotted the overturned lifeboat.

The boat was a few hundred yards from Chocolate Island, near the harbor mouth. Chocolate Island is eight miles from the scene of the sinking.

The lookout put his binoculars on the boat, and saw an arm wave.

Search and Rescue was notified, and the RCAF sent a Canso aircraft to search the area. The Cy Peck, after taking Hanson and Lothian to shore, also continued the search.

She was joined by another tug, the Ivor Foss, the RCMP patrol boat from Ganges, and several smaller craft.

Another body was found by 10 a.m., and the rest by 11:30 a.m.

All were found in the water.

CPA May Put Extra Planes On Big Run

CALGARY (CP)—Ronald Keith, assistant to the president of Canadian Pacific Air Lines, indicated Thursday CPA may operate more than one section on the daily trans-Canada flight it has been granted by the Air Transport Board.

He said there was no mention of overloads or extra sections to the flight when the board brought down its ruling Jan. 21. The company has been allowed one return trans-Canada flight a day with stops at Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal.

It was normal for an airline to run extra sections when bookings justified it, he said in an interview, and CPA intended to operate the flight "in the normal way."

There was no indication when CPA plans to inaugurate its trans-Canada service.

New Floods Poised, Ice-Blasting Studied

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP)—Residents of West Terre Haute braced themselves for the swirling Wabash River floodwaters today, while state officials pondered the feasibility of dynamiting a huge ice jam upstream.

The major flood peril seemed to be over on the upper Wabash above Delphi, where some 1,500 families were forced to flee from their homes, but officials feared new rains predicted for today might add to the swollen rivers.

An army of National Guardsmen joined a sandbagging crew at West Terre Haute, which is expected to be the next major target of the flood.

SURVIVOR TELLS STORY

'Slipped Off One at a Time'

Only known survivor of the Henry Foss sinking, chief engineer Edward Hanson, said in hospital at Ganges today the accident happened so quickly there was not even time to send a wireless call for aid.

Recovering from severe shock and exposure from hours in icy waters near the entrance to Ganges Harbor, Mr. Hanson said the tug hit a rock about 4 a.m.

'ALL PILED IN'

"It was completely black at the time," he said.

"We managed to get a lifeboat away, and all of us piled into it."

"The lifeboat capsized."

He said the men tried to cling to the lifeboat, but slipped off, one at a time, and floated away.

Mr. Hanson said there was a 70-mile wind blowing and the lifeboat was pitching violently.

"Lothian almost made it," he told hospital attendants.

"COULDN'T REACH"

(Richard T. Lothian, deckhand, was found floating in his lifebelt about 100 yards behind the overturned boat. He was picked up by the Cy Peck but pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.)

"Lothian hung on to the lifeboat until almost the end," Mr. Hanson said. "I couldn't reach him when he slipped away."

New B.C. Policy Rules Out 131 Tree Farm Applicants

timber in the proposed licence area.

The applicant will have to prove the timber will be processed in utilization plants already constructed or planned.

"Developed areas" is taken to mean areas within the Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island.

The new policy would leave small operators the right to cut on private lands or in areas set aside as "public working circles."

acceptance of a tree-farm licence under the new scheme, it is expected only the larger firms—MacMillan & Bloedel, Crown Zellerbach, B.C. Forest Products, Powell River Company, Alaska Pine and Canadian Forest Products, could apply.

"Every encouragement will be given to those who achieve complete utilization of the tree, and by so doing create a broader, more stabilized job base," the minister said.

NORMAN CRIBBENS IN THE LEGISLATURE

Should British Columbia's Centennial flag be made into a permanent provincial flag?

The question was raised on the floor of the legislature Thursday when Ray Williston, the personal lands and forests minister, raised the popular blue and white emblem above his head and said:

"Two or three provinces in Canada have their own flags—why shouldn't we?"

Mr. Williston suggested the flag could be converted into a permanent symbol of achievement in British Columbia by striking out the inscription "1858-1958" and substituting the historic words "Splendor Sine Occaso."

The suggestion seemed to find favor on the floor of the House and in the public galleries as well.

"It's a fine flag—more attractive than most of the national flags—and I think it would be a pity to throw it away," commented an elderly visitor.

A B.C. government stenographer who actually came to the legislature after her day's work was done, endorsed this view.

"Mr. Williston is right," she said. "That's the best flag we have ever seen in B.C."

The minister's endorsement of the centennial flag was indirectly a tribute to a B.C. newspaperman.

It isn't often that we members of the press gallery get the limelight in this House. Most of the time we are content to "blush unseen" in the scribbled balcony that hangs, like a captain's bridge, between sea and sky.

Mr. Williston dispelled our gloom by telling how one of our number—Paddy Sherman of Vancouver—had led an expedition to the top of 15,300-foot Mount Fairweather and had planted this centennial flag there.

We bristled with pride as Mr. Williston continued: "Never has this peak—the highest in British Columbia—been scaled by British Columbians before."

He then held up the famous flag and said it had been signed by Mr. Sherman and his fellow mountaineers.

"I suggest it should be made into a symbol of British Columbia, past and present."

Mr. Williston pinpointed Mount Fairweather by saying:

"It is right on the border between B.C. and Alaska at the north end of the pothole—that is I mean the panhandle."

As usual, the minister was anxious that no information concerning provincial resources should be withheld from the House, and his report took up most of the afternoon.

His earnestness always commands respect, whether from interest or otherwise.

He revealed that the government is anxious to diversify the economy of Kitimat—now almost a one-industry town—and he said the government was ready to receive an application for a tree-farm licence on condition that a pulp mill is constructed in the area.

A young professional man who is thinking of leaving England for B.C. writes:

"Just what sort of political administration have you got out there? I trust Social Credit doesn't mean socialism."

"We in England are on the threshold of a general election and every time I see a picture of Hugh Gaitskell (Labor leader in the British parliament) I get cold shivers down my spine."

For the first time since 1952, a woman minister said prayers when the House opened Thursday afternoon.

This was Rev. Laura Butler of Victoria and she was welcomed to the chamber by Rev. Philip Gagliardi, highways minister, and Mr. Williston.

... TREE FARMS

firm which produces pulp and cut lumber would be in best position to apply.

He said in the remote areas of the north and parts of the interior where there is a surplus of allowable cut and no private ownership, encouragement will be given through the tree farm licence system to the establishment of completely integrated industries.

He said pulp and paper mills are in this category and chip or processed board mills might be considered.

DISALLOWED

"The above stipulations mean that practically all of the 131 applications presently on file will be disallowed," he added.

He said in many cases there is a need to establish some alternative to tree farm licences which would ensure orderly planning, encourage complete utilization and stabilize established communities.

"Consideration is being given to long-term (21 years) timber sales within sustained yield units, which will lead to more permanent, efficient operations."

"Planned utilization of the tree might become one of the criteria which would establish the bona fides of those wishing to apply, and/or bid, for such long-term sales."

Certain application areas now withheld from timber sales could perhaps fill this requirement, he said.

OVER-DEMAND

The minister reported that in some areas of the province now, the policy of sustained yield has been hard to maintain because of over-demand for the supply of timber available. He named the Sechart Peninsula, Ketchikan River, Williams Lake and Lac la Poudre areas—the last two being the worst.

He said in 1955 operators in Williams Lake area were advised of a serious over-cut—10.75 million cubic feet as compared to the established allowable harvest of 6.7 million cubic feet. But in the three years following the cut was 15, 16 and 18 million cubic feet.

"Ever since the start of the period allowed for adjustment, production has increased to almost three times the allowable cut. Much of the excess timber has come from private lands which are now becoming depleted."

The minister charged the operators were "trying to get as much as they can before the axe falls."

He said the department plans to bring the cut down to 6.3 million cubic feet by 1964.

"This will obviously cause some disruption to the presently established industry, some of which was installed after the warning issued in 1955." Some consideration is being given to relocation of some of the industries involved to areas where timber is more available, Mr. Williston added.

'No Contract, No Work' Vow by Coast Loggers

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—Representatives of 30,000 district members of the International Woodworkers of America (AFL-CIO-CLC) adopted a policy today of "no contract, no work" for the coast lumber industry this year.

Delegates at the British Columbia district convention called for completion of all negotiations and, if necessary, of a government-supervised strike vote by June 15 "without fail."

Delegates said later the action results from extended negotiations which took place in 1958 and which produced no wage increase. It is expected this year's negotiations will start in early March, leaving the union in a legal position to strike if necessary when the present contract expires.

Meanwhile, the IWA delegates pondered over a warning from Bill Black, president of the British Columbia Federation of Labor, that unemployment in Canada in 1960 "will be as bad, if not worse than this year."

In an address to the convention, Mr. Black said the only thing that has saved the country from even greater unemployment is government and consumer spending and "when any one of these dries up, the Canadian economy will fall over on its face."

Loan Sharks Blasted But No Action Taken

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—Members have administered their annual thumping to the loan sharks but without reaching a firm decision whether to control lending activities by limiting rates of interest on loans.

As he has for several years past, Hazen Argue, CCF House leader, afforded the opportunity Thursday to castigate those who charge exorbitant interest rates by proposing a private bill to limit the rate to 12 per cent a year.

Most of the members expressed accord with Mr. Argue's attack on what he called "hordes of loan sharks and parasites" but his suggested rate met with less support from Liberals and Progressive Conservatives than did the proposal of Gabriel Roberge (Liberal, Megantic) that a committee study the question before further action is taken on Mr. Argue's bill.

However, both the bill and Mr. Roberge's amendment were talked out in a 4½-hour debate. The question now drops to the bottom of the list of private members' bills with little chance of being debated for some time.

In urging the House to approve the principle of his bill, Mr. Argue said the chartered banks failed to do a proper job in the small loan field. He proposed establishment of a publicly-owned lending system.

Mr. Argue, who has introduced the interest rate bill in previous sessions, said some loan companies in Toronto charge interest rates as high as 75 per cent a year.

He urged that the government permit a "free vote" on the issue—that is, one in which members could disregard party lines.

Mr. Argue said the government is frightened to allow private members' bills to come to a vote. Its courage was in inverse proportion to its majority. The government was making a farce out of Parliament when its supporters "talked out" every private member's bill.

Any firm which couldn't make a profit on 12-per-cent interest rates shouldn't be in business. Even if any loan company were put out of business "the CCF wouldn't weep."

As the government followed a policy of higher interest rates, the chartered banks became less interested in small loans. The banks were happy to carry the accounts on finance companies while denying loans to small borrowers.

'Real Competition' to Banks

A publicly-owned lending system would provide some "real competition" to the chartered banks. As well, credit unions should be given federal charters.

The fact that there was no limit on interest rates on loans above $1,500 was a "blot on democracy and on the so-called free enterprise system."

Murray-Smith (PC-Winnipeg North) said Mr. Argue had made "wild statements."

He said the CCF House leader has said in the past that the T. Eaton and Simpson companies charged as much as 54 per cent interest on some purchases.

"Would you class them as loan sharks?" Mr. Smith asked.

"Correct," said Mr. Argue.

Mr. Roberge proposed committee study because, he said, he doubts whether parliament has the right to impose a limit with respect to contracts and agreements.

Several speakers from Conservative ranks warned that placing too low an interest limit would drive legitimate lenders out of the business. Others doubted whether legislation would protect those fleeced by loan sharks; such people probably would lose

U.K. Debates Cyprus Pact

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's cabinet today debated accepting the new plan for Cyprus amid reports that Archbishop Makarios probably will visit London during a three-power settlement conference next week.

However, the reports said, it has not been decided yet whether Greek and Turkish Cypriot representatives will participate in any conference among Britain, Turkey and Greece to settle the problem of Britain's Mediterranean island colony. Makarios, now in Athens, is the exiled leader of the Greek Cypriot community.

If the cabinet approves the plan to make Cyprus an independent republic, the conference is expected to start about Monday and run for three or four days.

No More Money for Forests

THE COMBINED ESTIMATES for the provincial lands and forest department have been cut $70,000 for the coming year, but the forest service escapes this reduction. In fact the Forest branch estimates are some $36,000 above the figure for 1958-59.

On a $10 million estimate, however, a $36,000 increase is negligible, particularly in this time of rising costs.

In effect the forest service, charged with the administration of a resource from which British Columbia draws almost half its wealth, is asked to carry on with substantially the same funds allowed it at a time when the late Hon. Gordon Sloan said the supply of provincial men and money was inadequate.

In his report as commissioner in 1956, he noted that the shortage of men hampered essential surveys, inventories, fire protection and suppression, public relations, education — virtually every branch of operations.

After a consideration of forest revenue and expenditure, the commissioner remarked: "Whether an expenditure on the forest resources of this province of an amount equal to about one-third of forest revenue is adequate is a matter for the Government to determine."

"I have recommended a substantial increase in the Crown contribution to fire-protection expenditures, and this and the implementation of other recommendations involving added costs will undoubtedly increase this percentage but not, I think, to an unreasonable level."

On the basis of the coming year's estimates, as on those for the year following the report, little is being done by the Government to give the forest service the added sinews it needs for the job that remains before it.

The Government has a case for greater contributions from Ottawa. That point was recognized and stated clearly by the commissioner. Measured against revenue accruing to the federal treasury from British Columbia forests, the return in aid to B.C. forestry is minimal.

"It would seem to me," the commissioner said in his report, "that a reinvestment by Canada of less than 1 per cent of the revenue from our forest industries in the conservation of the forest resources of this province is worthy of comment. . . . In view of the major contribution our forest industries make to the national economy in the domestic and international markets of the world (it) is certainly not overly generous."

Undoubtedly that point will be pressed on Ottawa in pleas, or demands, for more federal funds for forestry. The case is valid. But the appeal is being addressed to a Federal Government wallowing in the greatest peacetime deficit in Canada's history. Unless the national policy is to be ever bigger and better deficits, will the merits of the case carry much weight?

Will they carry weight at a time when British Columbia is doing very little itself to equip the forest service with the extra men and funds so obviously required to do an adequate job?

The argument prepared by the late commissioner for greater federal contributions to British Columbia forestry stands without adornment. But the adornments of present provincial financial policy obscure it. And the adornments are a provincial budget higher than ever before and a direct debt retirement plan to be enforced for political reasons before the debt need be discharged.

Speculation and Madam Sun

ONE OF THE INTERESTING speculations emerging from Red China in recent weeks has been the suggestion that Madam Sun Yat-sen might succeed Mao Tse-tung as chairman of the People's Republic.

The assumption seems to be that Madam Sun might ascend to the honorary post without Mao necessarily yielding his position as executive boss.

This may be an imaginary development only. At the same time it presents several intriguing possibilities. Madam Sun is the widow of the father of the Chinese revolution. She has been consistently a Kuomintang leader and though a communist sympathizer, she is reportedly not a communist.

She has remained within the Peking sphere of influence and has not disguised her disagreement with her brother-in-law, Chiang Kai-shek.

Should Madam Sun be placed in the honored position as the figurative head of the People's Republic of China she would add strength to the fiction that the Peking regime is the all-party China, as opposed to the Nationalists of Formosa who are dominated by the single figure of Chiang.

Should the time arrive when Chiang disappeared from the scene, the speculation goes, then Madam Sun might be a significant factor in reconciling the two Chinas, since she moves within the aura of the universally respected Sun Yat-sen.

The actualities of the moment do little to support this trend of thought, but as speculation it has a certain interest in a world and in a China where the Sun name continues to claim a certain reverence.

Never Underestimate, Etc.

DURING THE NAZI ERA, Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels told German women to confine themselves to children, church and kitchen.

Like many of his other injunctions, that admonition has faded to the point where women run 606,000 West German business enterprises, 126,512 of them in the textile and clothing fields. In addition, women hold executive positions in the steel and coal and film industries.

Beyond this, women are the determining factor in 66 per cent of West Germany's private consumer buying and spend 20 per cent of the gross national income.

Postwar trends, the emancipation of the German woman and the adoption of Western merchandising techniques have brought her out of the house into an important position in the German community. She, more often than not, picks the style of the family car, spends an increasing part of the budget on cosmetics and appearance-improving merchandise and demands the labor-saving devices—washing machines, vacuum cleaners and refrigerators—that are common on the North American continent.

Apart from the impact of her new personality on the domestic market, she is becoming increasingly important as the producer of goods for export—and not only as the labor element which makes the merchandise.

Mr. Goebbels will be remembered because, as Shakespeare phrased it, "the evil that men do lives after them." But his edict limiting women to children, church and kitchen was not as any of the infamous injunctions the Nazi regime attempted to enforce.

Disturbing Egg-Headism?

MR. HUGH SHIRREFF, SOCIAL Credit member for Skeena, has informed the legislature that the proposed government grants to help bright students meet university fees "indicate a leaning toward egg-headism that I find a bit disturbing."

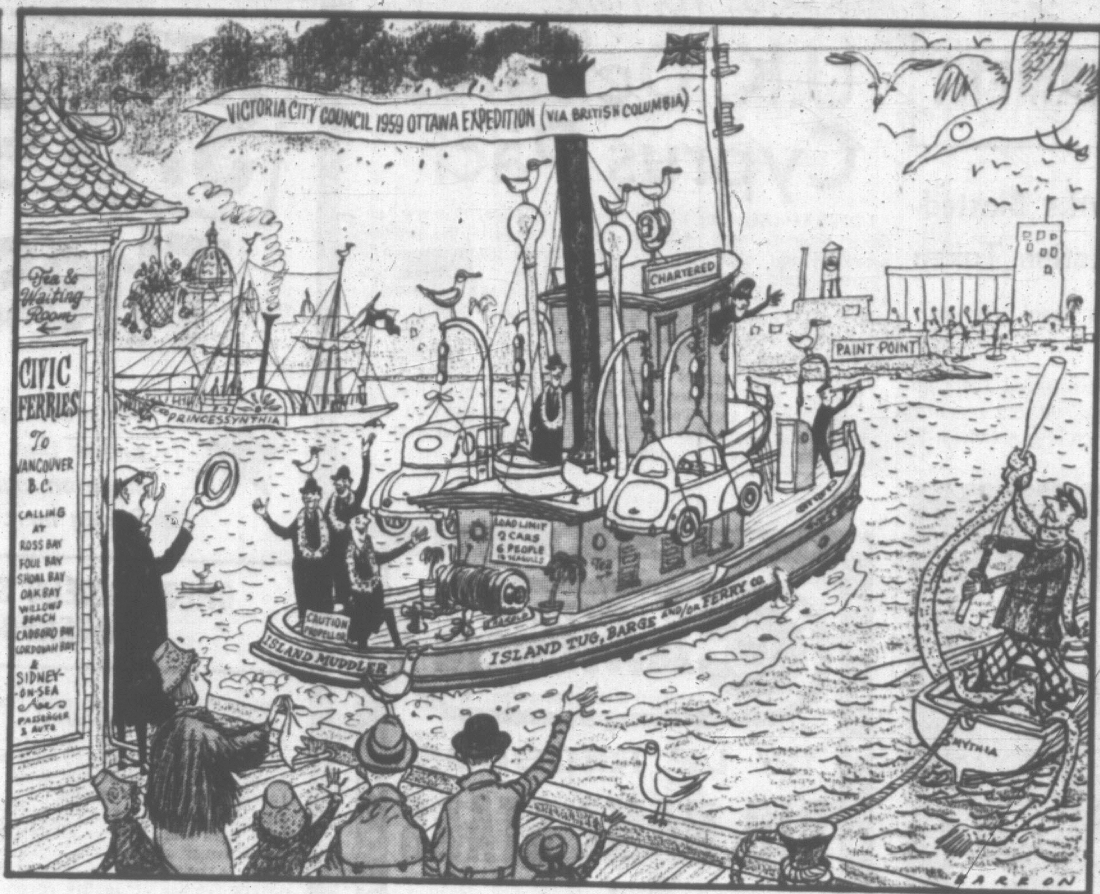

His argument seems to be that while emphasis is being placed on intellectual development at the University of British Columbia "in any athletic endeavour you might wish to name, we couldn't beat anyone."

Mr. Shirreff might recall the Olympic and Empire Games crews the University of British Columbia has produced recently. The Varsity eight won the Empire title in Vancouver in 1954, finished second in the Olympics and retained its Empire championship in Wales last year. The four without coxswain won their Olympic event, finished second in Wales.

He might also give thought to the reaction his misgivings about egg-headism must have on British Columbians who do not adhere to his party.

Is this another expression of anti-intellectualism from Social Credit's back-benches and a fear that Social Credit faces particular hazards in a climate of trained minds?

IT'S IN THE CARDS

A Matter of Dollars and Sentiments

By B. A. TOBIN

NOBODY knows exactly how long this Valentine's Day custom has been going on. The histories say there were a considerable number of saints named Valentinus, and none of them seems to have had much to do with the sentiments of the people who have taken over the day. It is true there were two martyrs of that name, and both of them died on Feb. 14. But they had nothing at all to do with colored cards that record anonymous sugary longings or adulatory comments. In fact, according to the experts, the lovers' day and the saint's day have nothing in common except that they both are observed early in the spring.

With only that to go on it's developed into quite a thing. In earlier days almost anything in the way of a lover's message was acceptable, as long as it was fancy and frilly. But in more recent times the lovers have been eased out by the hucksters. Sentiment was found to have a dollars and cents value, and expressing it was found to have a psychological value.

Before long, instead of a mere exchange of valentines between swains and lady-loves, there was quite a commercially-inspired traffic between swains and lady-loves, and vice-versa.

From there it was only a step to wider application. Today, apparently, everybody sends valentines to everybody. It's almost as universal as the annual Christmas trading, and much more realistic because you can say more or less what you really feel.

A man may open up a stationer's counter with high hopes, only to find himself addressed as, "You Old Goat!" The girl finds that to someone she is "You Little Prig!"

Either of them may find that their buck teeth, knock knees, avoirdupois, cross eyes or receding forehead—heretofore hidden it was hoped, from the world—are well known and relished by their "friends."

It's a far cry from a shy lover's note to some of the missives seen on the store counters these days. And what would St. Valentine—any one of them—think if he could see what his name is being used for in modern, civilized times.

"Roses are red," you read, "Violets are blue, Sugar is fattening, So are you."

Love has been left far behind. No field of human endeavor is safe from the saint's shafts these days.

I haven't looked, but I imagine you could even find political valentines. How about:

Communies are red, Liberals are blue, Soviets are finished And so are you.

Or you might get a sentiment like this:

For a ten-dollar fine Your ticket is marked, Your political bandwagon Was double-parked.

And for the candidate who didn't make it, what more loving message than:

To others' advice You should have heeded, You counted your ballots Before they were marked.

The federal member of parliament might find this in his mail:

Though I must admire you from afar, A continent between, forsooth; Do not forget your rising star Shines on the nearest polling booth.

And what more appropriate than this, to send to a business tycoon:

If I declare my love for thee, True and faithful to the end Will you reciprocate and for me Declare a whopping dividend?

No matter how awful you write them, you'll find even worse on the card counters. You might even find something like this:

Prime Ministers are mighty men, They govern all the nation, Their hat size, like the price index, Is subject to inflation.

COLIN GRAHAM, Curator, Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

For Argyle

On my own behalf and on the behalf of many with whom I have talked on the subject of the "tempest in a teapot" about the "rubbishy propaganda stunt" of Mr. Eisenhower's talking sputnik, I should like to register, even if tardily, our appreciation of Mr. Argyle's prompt and accurate diagnosis of that public relations effort on the part of Washington: a diagnosis that was later and authoritatively corroborated from across the border itself.

It is passing strange that there are still so many fogies in politics, as well as in more normal walks of life, who think that a civil servant should be muzzled, like a pet dog held on the leash by some minister of the crown. Their hearts must bleed for the federal minister of mines, that he should have been subjected to embarrassment by one of the public servants under his authority who had the temerity to exercise his rights as a private citizen and call a Yank spade a Yank spade. One wonders if the honorable gentleman had had his wrist slapped by somebody in Washington and he was still smarting from the pain!

C. K. MORISON, 2220 Windsor Road.

"Something for Nothing"

The increasing barrage of so-called bargains and "something for nothing" deals plaguing housewives today, clearly indicates how manufacturers have developed the psychological technique to stimulate sales and increase profits.

This is no more evident than in the soap and cereal industry. It is an everlasting struggle between rival companies to gain the initiative in the continual quest for more persuasive and bombastic methods of salesmanship.

Unfortunately the innocent consumer is left squarely in the middle, confused, and frequently bewildered. Many housewives find themselves unconsciously purchasing items simply because of an abundance of price-reducing coupons. Temptation such as this is inherent in most human beings; a weakness manufacturers are keenly aware of.

The Need for Flexibility

By WALTER LIPPMANN
From Washington

THE new word in Western diplomacy is "flexibility." It has become fashionable because just under the surface of the official formulae there is going on in Washington, in London, and in Bonn, a reappraisal of the German problem. It is a wholly false picture of what is going on to suppose that the issue in this reappraisal is between surrendering and standing firm, between appeasement and principle, between being soft and being strong. The real issue, to which the reappraisal is addressed, is whether to stand pat on positions that have become untenable or to move to new positions from which the Western Allies can recover the political initiative.

Let us take Berlin for a concrete example, remembering, of course, that it is only the focal point of the whole larger German problem.

At present there are two streams of traffic between West Berlin and West Germany.

Civilian Traffic

One, which is much the larger, is civilian traffic. This traffic is regulated by an agreement between the West German government and the East German government, and it is by this traffic that the civilian population of West Berlin lives and does its business.

The other traffic is military. It is between the British, French, and American forces in West Germany and their garrisons in West Berlin. This traffic is regulated by Allied agreement with the Soviet Union.

Moscow has now said that if there is no other negotiation about the status of Berlin, it will on May 27 turn over to the East German government its authority over the military traffic. If this is done, it will mean that at the check points on the highways and railroads and canals Allied military traffic will be met by East German rather than by Soviet officials.

The immediate and specific questions about Berlin are (1) what will we do when we meet these East German officials; and (2) what will the East German officials do about our military traffic?

This is where the difference between an "inflexible" and a "flexible" policy shows itself. The inflexible reply that as long as no one interferes with our traffic to Berlin, it does not make any difference whether the official who stamps the papers wears an East German or a Soviet uniform. They add that if Dr. Adenauer can allow East German officials to stamp his papers for the civilian traffic, he is in no position to insist that President Eisenhower be more inflexible than he is himself.

Open Access

In speculating about the use of force to keep open access to Berlin, the first question to be decided is whether we ought to be ready to go to war if we meet an East German official at the checkpoints on the highway.

Do we fight because the official who wants to see the papers carried by the truck wears an East German uniform, or do we fight if he closes the highway?

The flexibles say that a blockade of West Berlin is a fighting matter but that whether the official is East German or Soviet is not a fighting matter. The flexibles say, moreover, that to announce you will fight about the official at the check point is not a strong policy but a foolish one, and because it is foolish, it is weak. It is weak because the people of the Western world cannot conceivably be united to fight a world war on such an idiotic issue.

As we know, the Mayor of West Berlin, the highly esteemed Willy Brandt, can be counted among the flexibles. He has suggested that the East German officials might be recognized as "agents" of the Soviet Union.

Easier Way

An easier, and as good a way, to accomplish the same result would be to ask a Soviet guarantee of access to West Berlin until a new status can be arranged by negotiations covering the two Germanys and the two Berlins. What we want is that West Berlin should not be blockaded and strangled, and that Berlin should become again the capital of a reunited Germany.

This flexible position is a strong one. We stand firm on the substance, which is that West Berlin is not to be blockaded.

We are indifferent to the formalities which do not matter as long as access to West Berlin is open. We keep alive our real objective, which is to maintain West Berlin as an island within East Germany, but to restore its status as the capital city to which all parts of Germany must have equal access.

It may well be that the Soviet Union will refuse to guarantee access during the period, which would have to be a long one, when the whole German problem is being negotiated.

If that is what happens, the Soviet Union will find itself in a dangerous position. It will have given the East Germans a free hand to impose a blockade, which would be an act of war, and it will be committed to come to the defence of the East Germans if they provoke a war.

This is a much bigger gamble than Moscow has ever taken before, and we need not jump to the conclusion that it will take the gamble now.

SCIENCE DEFINED

When the poet Coleridge tried to define true beauty, he returned always to one thought: beauty, he said, is "unity in variety." Science is nothing else than the search to discover unity in the wild variety of Nature—or more exactly, in the variety of our experiences of Nature.

—Dr. J. Bronowski, on the B.B.C.

"Is THAT THE UPPER PLATE YOU BEEN HAVIN' TROUBLE WITH?"

The Old School Try

WHEN we were gay blades at Craigdarroch, with the world on a string, we sang a song stolen straight from McGill. "Put on your old blue and gold sweater," to the tune of Your Old Grey Bonnet, "cause you've got none better, and open up another keg of beer. It ain't for knowledge, we came to college, but to raise hell all the year."

We never opened up one keg of beer, let alone another. And we didn't raise much of anything either. Now the young people at Mount Tolmie have appropriated and modified the song, making it "your old blue-and-gold sweater" which is theft from McGill by way of UBC.

And despite initiation nights, campus-queen contests and the odd bit of horseplay, including a day with the premier, I doubt that they raise any more Cain than we did. So many of them are going to College with a view to acquiring an education.

Possibly for the wrong reasons, they seem to take it a lot more seriously than we did.

We always had time for common rooms discussions—those meetings of the mind when a boy could sound off on liquor, love, evolution, religion and the class struggle; subjects on which we were uniformly uninformed.

We also found time for rugby practice, once or twice a week and a game on Saturday. We managed to squeeze in a Friday night's dancing for the price of a milkshake at Terry's and, on a balmy afternoon, we might skip a lecture to stretch out on the grass behind the old biology lab for a cigarette when the schoolboard forbade smoking in the college.

No doubt the boys and girls find similar distractions now. But from parental observation, I'd say they crack their books a little harder, too, if they want to hit a decent average. Most of them I've talked to seem to have that objective, before them.

I'm sure there are exceptions. There must be lots of youngsters who take the "put on your blue-and-gold sweater" philosophy to heart—and frequently graduate at Christmas. But since I don't get around like I used to, I don't know them.

At all events it seems to me that most of the young people at college are working at the business of acquiring grades, which is one approach to education, and they find it necessary, in a number of cases, to budget their time.

If getting ahead in school is their objective, they haven't quite as much leisure as they might desire to become top-notch athletes. There's a penalty for putting in time to become top-notch athletes, as young Collegians who have gone after national team championships know. Too often the games times has reduced their study to a point where a year can be lost.

Losing a year is expensive both in time and money. And since a fair percentage of the people enrolled at College are reasonably hard-headed in their consideration of such matters, not too many of them are willing to make the sacrifice to scale the athletic heights.

Reaching the top in sport doesn't pay off too well in British Columbia's educational system. A boy who is a champion may qualify for a scholarship or assistance at an American university. At home the reward—that is the tangible reward—seems to be offered for progress in scholarship.

That doesn't stop athletes from going to College. But being athletes is not the be-all and the end-all of college attendance. Sure, they give it the old school try when they're on a team. We haven't though, approached the point where we've developed Knute Rocknes to make games the significant part of the higher educational process. I don't think we should. I'd rather see the young men and women thoroughly enjoying the exercise and competition of games that are still games, not productions, as part of their school lives.

That doesn't limit my admiration for the crews at UBC who worked in the early mornings and did without a lot of social life to be come the best in the world. It doesn't stop me from applauding a good college rugby team.

But it helps me to avoid feeling disturbed by reports that the emphasis is being placed on egg-headism at the college and university. Why shouldn't it be? Isn't the main purpose of a university education to develop intellects?

There are other sources for doughheads and muscle-men. I'd hate to see the university intrude there. For my money—and all of us taxpayers are chipping in—I'll take education for my dollars to universities.

I can tune in on razzlin' any old night.

The Other Half

By DOROTHY PLANT

(The Times today starts a weekly series of travel articles by Dorothy Plant of Nanaimo who has just started a five-month tour of Pacific countries that will take her to many out of the way places. Dorothy is an experienced writer and broadcaster. Her first article is from Hawaii. Others will come from Fiji, Australia, Indonesia, Singapore, Thailand, Cambodia, Vietnam, the Philippines, China and Japan.)

I am sitting on a high-walled terrace where trade winds whisper among the cocopalms. The sea looks calm and lazy but once in awhile I hear a boom and a plume of spray writes a different story as a comb breaks against the lava rocks below.

A huge turtle surfaced awhile ago, took a gulp of good Hawaiian sunshine and with a flick of its flippers made a racing swimmer's turn, upended and sank head-first from sight. Soon a whale blew, a black shape danced on its tail to shake off parasites and it, too, disappeared.

Ha'izi in the distance, mysterious Niihau merges with the sea. Here no white man may land nor even approach by boat for full-blooded Hawaiians live on this island off Kauai, furthest north of the Hawaiian Islands and the loveliest.

On Kauai, I am the guest of Vancouver's Miss Ann Clark who with her father, A. E. Clark, and her sister, Rose, makes her home in Hawaii during the winter months. And what a different world this is from the tourist's Honolulu! That world I know, too, and enjoyed for six weeks a couple of years ago. But this is the true Hawaii.

Yesterday we drove to the other end of Kauai to see the places where they shot "South Pacific," still being shown in Vancouver. The stream where the "Happy Talk" song was made. The beach where Mitzi Gaynor washed that man right out of her hair. The house of Emile, on which the producers spent $10,000 and which never once was shown in the film. The hole in the mountain where the heroes spied out the enemy fleet.

We also saw one man's answer to the tidal wave that had washed his house away in 1956. Constructed on a concrete slab with concrete pillars to support its weight, the new house stands high on stilts and is built V-shaped like the prow of a ship to breast any future colossal tide.

The Waioli Mission was next port of call. Here Abner Wilcox converted the heathen in 1838. And his youngest granddaughter, Miss Mabel Wilcox, still lives in the house where she was born 76 years ago—a house that holds a fabulous collection of early Hawaiiana gathered by Wilcoxes and Lyman's, her maternal grandfather having been missionary at the big island of Hawaii. She blew for us the conch shell that was the mission bell.

Then Miss Mabel handed me a bowl of highly polished koa wood with a small handle at one side. Care of this bowl occupied the full-time attention of the chief's most loyal and trusted subject, she told me. For this was the official receptacle for the chief's spit. "If an enemy could get even a drop of the chief's spit or a shred of his finger nail, he could pray the chief to death," she said, adding, "Often a bowl was set with human teeth. The teeth of his enemy."

She picked up another, longer bowl with a sort of centreboard inside at one end. "Can you guess what this is for?" she asked.

I gave up without a struggle. "It's a finger bowl," she informed me. "They had finger bowls, sugar cane and tobacco hundreds of years before the white man came. And we called them savages!" She ran her fingers down each side of the center-board. "They washed the poi off their fingers and wiped them like this." Then, pointing to an eight-foot board, she told me that this was for making tapa cloth.

I noticed that while three sides were squared, there was a V-shaped hollow in the fourth side. Woman-like, it seems, the "savages" liked to wrap up their polished fibres into the tapa that served as sheets, blankets and clothing. And like our Canadian Indian moccasins telegraph, messages were tapped out on the hollow board from one valley to another as the women beat the cloth with their intricately carved tapa pounders.

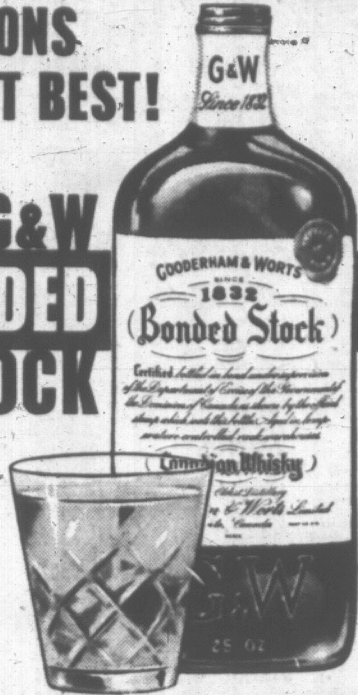

Today, high on the terrace, I look at Niihau where Hawaiians live, their old-time native life uncomplicated by the white man's ways. And I wonder if the men still carve koa fingerbowls there. If women still make their tapa cloth bedding and the square brads of human hair that only Hawaiians know how to make and which form a necklace for their chief. And if the traditional bone ornament, worn like a pendant, still is fashioned from the thigh bone of his greatest enemy.

RANGOON, Burma (UPI)—Gen. Ne Win, premier of Burma's caretaker government, resigned today.

Forward Step

NEW YORK—Settlement of a dispute between Cambodia and Thailand has been acclaimed at the United Nations as a significant forward step for the organization. The controversy itself is minor—over a disputed border area—but the method of solving it is considered significant.

It was reached by dispatching a personal representative of the secretary-general instead of raising the issue in the Security Council where it might have become a cold war issue.

A communique from the two governments, released at the United Nations, announced that diplomatic relations, which had been broken off, will be resumed at the suggestion of the secretary-general's representative, Ambassador Johan Beck-Friis of Sweden.

At a press conference Mr. Hammarskjöld twice referred to the "experiment" in settling the dispute as one of the most hopeful examples of the way in which the United Nations is working out new ways to reach international solutions and ease tensions.

Mr. Hammarskjöld pointed out that normally such a dispute would have come before the Security Council but that in this instance both parties had agreed instead to ask the secretary-general to send a mediator. The members of the Security Council were consulted and agreed.

"You can see how much more effective and smooth-working such a technique is than the regular one which involves all the meetings and debates and so on," he commented.

Remarks Mr. Hammarskjöld has made in the past indicate that where possible he believes in avoiding votes. He has pointed, for example, to a method which has been used successfully on a number of occasions where a chairman will sum up the conclusions of a meeting rather than put the decision to a vote.

Any nation is free to express a dissenting view after the chairman's summary but it has been found in practice that few do so. Mr. Hammarskjöld has also expressed surprise at his discovery that world leaders in private display far greater tolerance and understanding than they are able to express in public.

It is apparent that he believes there is a measure of goodwill on both sides of the cold war and that the wisest course, wherever possible, is to avoid forcing nations to take rigid positions as, for example, in a UN vote.

Such methods, while not spectacular, are considered at the United Nations to be a significant development because they appear to be the modest beginning of an active rather than passive role for the United Nations. Whereas the main function of the United Nations has been the passive role of providing a forum where national representatives could debate, the organization is now beginning to work more vigorously on its own.

Another small but significant area in which the United Nations is beginning to operate in a more direct role is in supplying experts to governments. Formerly experts went out as advisers only but now a new agency, directed by Dr. Hugh Keenleyside of Canada, sends out men who work as senior salaried officials of national governments.

To Canadians this may not sound like a dramatic change but countries which accept outsiders to help them run their affairs are yielding sovereignty to the United Nations and debate in the General Assembly showed that they are keenly aware of this.

There's a significant difference between an outsider who gives advice and an outsider who takes a position as a senior official issuing orders to subordinates of the host country, making decisions which may have wide-ranging effects on the country.

The United Nations is no super-government and it's possible that the organization's authority is grossly inadequate to meet the world's needs. But at any rate the organization is alive and developing. Perhaps the people of the world will some day give it enough power to do the job.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices recorded only narrow changes today in quiet trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Sale of a small quantity of flax to Holland was the only export business reported.

Oats and barley business was domestic with most orders connected with feed supply shipments. Rye dealings were light and local.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat included: United Kingdom, 1,050,000 bushels; South Africa, 400,000; France, 300,000; Peru, 200,000; and West Germany, 20,000.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat all were three-quarters cent higher than Thursday's prices.

(By James Richardson & Sons)

CHICAGO (AP) — General demand bolstered the grain futures market today with all commodities except oats moving ahead by major fractions of a cent.

At their best, rye, new-crop wheat and new-crop soybeans had gains of a cent or more on export buying and short-covering but the higher prices brought out some profit taking for the weekend.

'Coalition Gov't Forced Sales to BCE'

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

The Byron Johnson coalition government forced the B.C. Power Commission to sell its Hope and Lillooet plants to the B.C. Electric, the Shrum Royal Commission was told Thursday by J. Lyle Wilson, solicitor for the Power Commission.

Since then there have been no examples of government interference "to my knowledge," Mr. Wilson added.

His evidence came as Charles Nash, P.C. load development director, outlined a detailed report of the sale of three P.C. electrical systems to the B.C.E. Two of these were the Hope and Lillooet systems under the Johnson government. The third was the Clowholm-Sechelt system sold in 1956.

The Shrum commission, consisting of Dr. Gordon Shrum, John Dunsmuir and William Anderson, is investigating Power Commission operations.

Mr. Dunsmuir wanted to know why the power commission sold the Hope and Lillooet systems to the B.C.E.

AGITATION

"I can't understand why the power commission wouldn't expand such a system for the benefit of the customers it would serve."

Mr. Nash explained that there was considerable agitation in Hope to have the B.C.E. take over.

"If the B.C.E. comes along and says, on the basis of its overall large system, it can provide cheaper power than the commission, the customers want it."

Here Mr. Wilson interjected... "I think it should be pointed out that it was against the wishes of the former power commission that Lillooet and Hope be sold. The government under Byron Johnson ordered that they be sold."

"This is a very important point," said Dr. Shrum. He instructed that Mr. Wilson be sworn in. After he took the oath the P.C. solicitor repeated his statement.

"You are saying that the Johnson government overruled the former power commission?" asked Dr. Shrum.

"That is right," said Mr. Wilson. "The former commission had surveys under way to extend service from Hope and Lillooet."

Commissioner Dunsmuir said he thought documentation should be produced on this point. Mr. Wilson was asked to search PC files.

Mr. Nash said the P.C. acquired the Hope system on Aug. 1, 1945, from Hope Utilities Co. for $29,207. Number of customers increased nearly four times, from 190 in August, 1945, to 728 when the system was sold to the B.C.E. six years later for $304,255.

The Lillooet power system was acquired by the P.C. from Pacific Great Eastern Railway on Aug. 1, 1947, for $19,725.

BIG GROWTH

Like the Hope system, the Lillooet operation enjoyed sizeable customer growth. In the four years it was operated by the P.C., number of customers increased 75 per cent from 135 to 237. It was sold to the B.C.E. on June 27, 1951, for $127,667.

Mr. Nash said the system was "very small" when the P.C. purchased it. The P.C. sought to buy power from the B.C.E.'s Bridge River source but turned to a diesel operation when the B.C.E. reply "some time later" indicated that transmission costs ruled out low-cost energy.

The final but not the least significant example of withdrawal by the power commission in favor of the B.C.E. was the Sechelt transfer.

Prior to 1956, said Mr. Nash, the Powell River Co. supplied power for Powell River and adjacent communities.

The company was anxious to be relieved of these loads—"they could make more money producing paper, I presume, they are not in the power business"—and the P.C. studied means of providing the service.

ANNUAL DEFICIT

To enlarge its Clowholm generating station serving the Sechelt peninsula meant an annual deficit for several years.

Sale of power to the Powell River area, plus a further block sale of power to the paper mill, would have "improved the overall financial result" and reduced the deficits. The Powell River Company declined to buy secondary power for its mill, said Mr. Nash.

Regardless, the P.C. began negotiations in February, 1955, to take over the Powell River area, supplying energy from the Clowholm plant.

Then, said Mr. Nash, "On March 18, 1955, a deal was reported in which the Powell River Company had agreed to purchase a block of power from the B.C. Electric."

That move sounded the death knell for the P.C. in that area.

Said Mr. Nash: "Operating so close to cost as the commission does, there would be no financial cushion, particularly if it were necessary to build a high-voltage transmission (from Clowholm to Powell River) at a cost of several million dollars, to permit a contract with the Powell River Company or service to district customers at rates comparable to those offered by the B.C. Electric."

The Clowholm system was sold to the B.C.E. on May 1, 1956, for $2,360,288.

As Mr. Nash saw it: "The power commission lost territory which could be expected to show a deficit for several years but that could be expected to improve over the long term but only with adequate power supply."

"The B.C. Electric gained operating territory which, because of the company's much larger base of urban business, it might be expected to support more easily than could the power commission."

"The conclusion that may be drawn from these territorial transfers is that the customer benefits from system integration but that the optimum benefit may be gained only with an adequate source of the lowest-cost energy."

COME IN TODAY FOR A DEMONSTRATION

SIDELINE SLANTS BY Doug Peden

Five days each week, Harry Turner is a quiet-voiced manager of an accounts office for our provincial government. On most wintry Saturday afternoons, he's a bruising bomber on a rugby pitch, a place never intended for timid souls.

There are times when Harry is toying his solid 205 pounds around that he is accused of being rough beyond the normal call of pigskin duty. But it is interesting to note that when touring squads from England—birthplace of the oval ball pastime—New Zealand or Australia, make Victoria a port of call, Harry's tactics amid the other violence don't rate a raised eyebrow.

In other words, Turner tackles the game in the manner which many say it should be played. But it seems there is no middle road in assessing his talents and tactics. Depending on which side of the touchline you are standing, Harry is either considered just about the greatest forward around these parts or a brawny brawler who operates on the outskirts of the rules.

Whatever the final verdict, this 31-year-old veteran of scrums and cleat-curved ears has pounded out a formidable record during the 12 years he has been upsetting people in the Victoria Rugby Union's first division.

A member of the James-Bay Athletic Association squad all the way, he has shared in eight city titles during those years, has been selected to play against every touring team to pass through our evergreen playground and has played with Victoria's Crimson Tide in every McKechnie Cup match—except one—since 1947.

Rumors have been circulating for the past couple of seasons that he is about ready to give up the familiar Saturday mud baths. But Harry, who spent a few summers chasing softballs and was a better-than-average Canadian football lineman in the city circuit before hanging up the helmet and shoulder pads last season, has other ideas.

"I like rugby," he says. "I see no reason why I shouldn't enjoy playing for another few years."

Rugby Most Satisfying to Play

When a man competes with the best for 12 years in a sport where the only rewards are contusions, fractures and self-satisfaction, he must have discovered a way to stay in condition. Harry's system is a simple one. Two evenings each winter week you can find him working out at the YMCA. Rugby practices and games take care of the exercise quota on another two or three days out of seven.

Perhaps the main reason for the length of Harry's playing career is his feeling for the sport. "I've always got a bigger kick out of rugby than any other game," he says. "It gives me the most satisfaction, possibly because you can't play it well unless you're in good condition."

Turner fell behind a bit in his conditioning schedule this winter, but he had a legitimate excuse. He collected a broken jaw just after the half-time interval of a game on Nov. 22 and was forced to take it easy for a few weeks. In fact he is lucky he is able to chew steaks again because he played out the game after the injury although, "I thought it was probably broken because I could feel something grating."

He wasn't in top shape and the fracture wasn't fully knitted when he came back a month ago to keep his McKechnie Cup skin intact in a match against Vancouver. The skin was shattered the following weekend when the B.C. Rugby Union made a mockery of the traditional cup battles.

No Better Place to Prove the Point

Struggling to select the team which will leave next week on a tour of Japan, the B.C. Rugby Union scheduled a trial match at Vancouver and Turner was among seven city stalwarts on the mainland while the Tide was taking a cup thumping from UBC at Macdonald Park.

Anyway, Harry's name didn't appear on the tour list, which surprised a lot of people who thought he was a cinch for the honor. However, the man who Crimston Tide coach Alex Macdonald calls "the most accomplished forward in B.C. and possibly the best we've ever had," and of whom former Tide coach Doug Bray says, "he should be on the team," will be playing for Victoria against the B.C. All-Stars at Macdonald Park Saturday afternoon and the evidence will be on display for all to see.

The match promises to be anything but a tea party since there have been mutterings of pigskin "politics" by Victoria players who believe the calibre of local rugby rated more than three places—captured by Peter Clarke, Chris Pollard and Don Burgess—on the 23-man squad. And it might be said there's no better place to prove such a point than on the rugby field.

Two of the players critics claim should be going along on the trans-Pacific junket are Turner and Charlie Bishop, a slippery little chunk of quicksilver who is a rarity in B.C. rugby circles—a wing three-quarter who knows where an opponent's ankles are located.

Yes, there could be some stormy collisions at Macdonald Park tomorrow afternoon as the men in short pants go about attempting to prove the wisdom or the folly behind the selectors' handiwork.

Bronc Back in Harness And Bruins Boom Along

By The Canadian Press

The list of scorers in the National Hockey League might read differently if Bronco Horvath of Boston Bruins hadn't broken his jaw last November.

The fracture which the 28-year-old centre suffered in a game with Toronto Maple Leafs kept him out of 25 games this season, but right now he is the kingpin in Boston's four-game winning streak.

Horvath fired the winning goal with four minutes to play Thursday night as the Bruins defeated Chicago Black Hawks 5-4 and entrenched themselves in third place in NHL standings.

STILL WEARS MASK

It was also Horvath who fired the winning goal the night before, when Boston came from behind to defeat New York Rangers 3-2. And it was Horvath, a former Ranger, who turned a hat trick Sunday night as Boston demolished the Rangers 4-1. He is still wearing a mask to protect his jaw.

In the only other NHL game, Thursday Detroit Red Wings and New York played scoreless hockey until 8:03 of the third period, when Jack McIntyre potted the only goal of the game and gave Detroit a 1-0 win.

The shutout was goalie Terry Sawchuk's fourth of the season and victory lifted the once-feared Wings out of the league cellar.

In Boston, lanky Ed Litzenberger scored a goal and two assists to join Montreal's Bernie Geoffrin in second place in the individual scoring parade. Ted Sloan, Ted Lindsay and Al Arbour counted Hawke, other goals.

Leo Labine, with two, Flem Mackell and Guy Gendron scored Boston goals in addition to Horvath.

SOME KNIFE WORK

MONTREAL (CP)—Quarterback Sam Etcheberry, of Montreal Alouettes, entered hospital Thursday for a minor operation on his left knee.

He plays the same position (right wing) and is an opportunist just like the Rocket. I'd like to keep him with us another year but I'm afraid that the Canadiens will grab him after this season.

"He's worth at least $50,000. And he is just as effective skating back to check as he is on offence."

Rochester, a joint Toronto Maple Leafs-Canadiens farm club, is in fourth place in the six-team circuit. They were in last place before Hicke, a graduate of Regina Junior Pats, began his sensational climb to the top spot a month ago.

HOME LIFE BEST BET FOR BUDDING ATHLETES

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Teddy Morris, Toronto Argonaut football talent scout, told fathers here not to let their young sons turn professional. "Turn the contract breakers away," he told Rotary Club members. "Youngsters who go into professional sport too early suffer from the lack of home influence."

'NOT FAR OFF'

Old Master Predicts World Curling Series

WINNIPEG (CP)—A world's championship in curling?

It may not be far off, says Ken Watson of Winnipeg, an executive member of the Dominion Curling Association and a three-time winner of the Canadian curling championship.

Watson has just returned from a 10-day visit to Scotland where he helped set up the first annual competition between the curling champions of Canada and Scotland. It will be a best-of-five series in Scotland March 9-11.

Good Points Don't Outweigh Bad One

Haworth, 'Nich' Maintain Streaks But Cats Beaten

Seattle 7, Cougars 5
Al Nicholson and Gord Haworth continue to pile points on their individual Western Hockey League scoring totals.

That's good.

Doug Macauley seems to have regained his old effective scoring stride.

That, too, is good.

But Victoria Cougars' defence also seems to have slipped back into an old, ineffective form.

It's quite apparent that is not good.

FELL APART

Defensive problems—an old bugaboo—cropped up again Thursday night and Victoria's hopes of improving their shaky hold on third place in the Coast Division standing dropped one notch.

Seattle Totems, scoring four straight goals in the final period, did the damage before 2,184 hometown fans when they stopped the Cougars 7-5 Thursday.

A revised line sparked Totems to victory. Coach Keith Allen shifted hustling Jimmy Powers to a wing position with veteran Guyle Fielder and Val Fonteyne. The combination paid off by scoring three goals in Totems' closing rush. Powers got two and Fonteyne one.

DON CONNECTS

Don Chiupka, ending a season's drought against the Victoria club, scored two goals for Seattle while Tommy McVie and Cummy Burton added one each.

Macauley scored two goals for the third straight game to spark Victoria while Nicholson, rookie Don Blackburn and Enio Scisizzi each added one. Nicholson and Haworth also added two assists to run their consecutive scoring spree to 10 games.

But Victoria rearguards gave up seven goals wasting the five their improved offence managed to get by Bev Bentley and again putting the finger on defence. The Cougars have scored four or more goals in 23 games this season and have lost eight and tied two of them.

Victoria coach Pat Egan came in for special attention from the 2,184 fans in the third period when he gave a bit of special attention to Seattle darling Fielder. Egan fined him for the second time this season, drew two penalties and assisted on Scisizzi's last minute goal.

The same two teams square off in Memorial Arena Saturday night.

It Looks Like Spook's Given Up the Ghost

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Spook Jacobs, one of the ring-leaders in the International League Players' Association's "no pension plan, no play" policy, Thursday returned his signed contract to the Columbus Jets.

The 33-year-old infielder was the 19th man under contract on the Jets' 38-man winter roster.

Jacobs, the club's representative to the player association, was one of the instigators for an international League pension plan, which club owners turned down.

The players threatened to strike at the beginning of the season if the owners didn't set up a plan. However, the threat was never backed up, as players returned signed contracts.

Hostile Aussie Fans Get Gonzales' Goat

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)

Pro tennis king Pancho Gonzales three times threatened spectators while losing a match in the Adelaide tournament Thursday night to Tony Trabert.

Trabert beat Gonzales, 6-3, 1-6, 11-9, while the champion was carrying on a running war with barracking fans.

One spectator in particular kept yelling at Gonzales. In the first set Pancho walked over to promoter Jack Kamer and said: "If he doesn't shut up I'll do something drastic."

Kramer approached a policeman who went to the stand where the fan was sitting.

During the second set Gonzales stopped play and called to another fan: "Come on to the court—we'll have it out."

At intermission he walked to the rear of the stands and spoke to still another spectator. But police stood guard and there was no incident.

NANAIMO TO APPEAL

Ashbee Out For One Year

Nanaimo's Don Ashbee has been suspended from hockey for one year.

Sentence was announced Thursday by Leo Atwell, Nelson, British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association president.

The suspension came as a result of Ashbee's attack on referee Johnny Smith Tuesday night at Memorial Arena in the first game of the Island intermediate playoffs between Victoria Navy and Nanaimo Clippers. It is effective immediately.

Frank Crane, manager of the Clippers, said in Nanaimo today he will appeal the decision.

Second game of the Island series is to be played Saturday in Nanaimo.

Quakers Vacate Prairies' Cellar

The last-place squad in the Prairie Division met the Cougars' cellar-dwellers Thursday night and are last no more.

Saskatoon Quakers' 7-3 triumph over the New Westminster Royals boosted the Prairie club one point ahead of Winnipeg's Western Hockey League entry. Royals remain nine points behind fourth-place Spokane in the coast standings.

Rookie Gord Labossiere, Jackie McLeod and Bob Kabe each scored twice for Quakers. Vic Lynn getting the other goal. Max Bentley assisted on three of the goals.

Hugh Barlow, Arlo Goodwin and Art Jones were the New Westminster scorers.

Royals played with only 12 men. Defenceman Pete Wright was sidelined by an injury and Ron Matthews had to return home to New Westminster because of business reasons. Richie Van Impe, ordinarily a forward, was used as defence.

RELIEF FRAUD ATTEMPT GETS WORKER $25 FINE

Josar Franc, 4223 Shelbourne, was fined $25 and $5 costs in Saanich police court Thursday when he pleaded guilty of attempting to obtain social assistance by fraud.

Court was told Franc applied for assistance because he had been unemployed since December and had no unemployment insurance benefits, and swore his application was true.

It was found out he had been steadily employed since April, 1958, making $175 a month plus free accommodation at Shelbourne Street greenhouses.

Franc said he had not understood the application form and when asked by the court why he had made application in the first place he explained he needed extra money to pay off his fare from Winnipeg.

A wife and child used up his wages, he said.

Gov't Body To Lease UBC Lands

Establishment of a government commission to lease University of British Columbia endowment lands as a source of a $20,000,000 fund for university purposes, was proposed Thursday to the B.C. legislature.

Members were told it is envisioned the 1,400 acres of Point Grey property would realize a capital gross of at least $13,000 an acre.

The scheme, drawn from a master survey plan by Dr. D. B. Turner, was presented by Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston.

The plan called for establishment of a commission to lease the lands and set up a corporation to arrange development and a municipal organization. The commission would have the right to borrow money and levy taxes.

UNDER CROWN CONTROL
The corporation would be known as University Endowment Estates and would remain in control of the Crown. (The lands were ceded to UBC by the government about 40 years ago.)

The overall plan calls for lease of the lands on either a rental or cash payment basis for terms up to 99 years. The Turner report includes plans for residential neighborhoods, parks, churches, recreation facilities, shopping centres and roads.

The lands are located in one of the choice areas of Greater Vancouver, surrounding the university on Point Grey.

It is estimated in the report a year would be required to install water and sewer services before general development could begin.

Mr. Williston noted, "May I say at the outset that the government is in agreement with the broad principles enunciated in the report. There will of necessity be some changes in the implementation of the recommended plans to fit the changing conditions of the years. The plan carries the recommendation that it be a flexible one."

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Deposed Cuban president Fulgencio Batista has warned Fidel Castro that force alone is not enough to rule.

Mural Poses Problem: 'What Is It?'

TORONTO (CP)—A Windsor member of the Ontario legislature said Wednesday the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission paid more than $10,000 for a modernistic mural but no one knows what it depicts.

Arthur Reaume, Liberal member of Essex North and former mayor of Windsor, told the assembly the mural by Toronto artist Harold Town is a sample of "the extravagance and confusion that exists in hydro at the present time."

The 37-by-10-foot mural was for a seaway building at Cornwall.

Mr. Reaume and two fellow Liberal members showed the assembly a six-by-two-foot reproduction. He said: "Somebody told me it looks as if a couple of drunken painters had had four or five cans of paint, then got confused and threw everything they had left at the wall."

Alan Jarvis, director of the National Gallery in Ottawa, has described the work as "a great step forward in Canadian mural art."

Mr. Town said the painting is "pure abstraction, yet people accept it."

He was commissioned by hydro to do a picture portraying the St. Lawrence power project. He said it was done in abstract art because "you can't see it, you can't taste it, you can't smell it."

More Control of Power Board Asked

It was fortunate for B.C. that the "Briggs balloon" went up when it did," R. O. Newton, Social Credit member for Columbia, told the legislature Thursday.

Mr. Newton, referring to the charges against the B.C. Power Commission made by its former general manager, H. Lee Briggs, continued: "It showed that the B.C. Power Commission is too much of an autonomous body. I think we should have more government control of this organization."

Mr. Newton's statement was greeted with jeers from the CCF opposition benches.

He went on to praise Premier Bennett's 1959 budget, adding: "With such a fine visionary budget as this we can look forward to our next Centennial (in 2058) with hope and confidence."

He spoke critically of the Recreation and Conservation Department over its allocation of campsite in his part of the province.

Mr. Newton added that he hoped the government would do all in its power to promote the building of the Mica dam on the Columbia River.

'Truth' Asked On Sommers

The public of British Columbia are waiting for Premier Bennett to tell them why he did not dismiss Attorney-General Robert Bonner from office because of his handling of the Sommers bribery case, Cedric Cox (CCF, Burnaby) said in the legislature Thursday.

Amid cries of "Shame!" from the government benches, Mr. Cox declared the people of B.C. are anxious that Premier Bennett should tell them "the truth about the Sommers case."

(Mr. Sommers' appeal against a five-year jail sentence for accepting bribes while he was lands and forests minister will be heard in Victoria next week.)

"The people also want to know if the premier is going to give evidence before the Shrum Royal Commission on the Briggs charges," said Mr. Cox, referring to allegations made by H. Lee Briggs, former general manager of the B.C. Power Commission.

"The public have a right to satisfaction in this matter."

"BRAIN-WASH"

Continuing his attack, Mr. Cox accused the premier of trying to "brain-wash" the people with his debt reduction policies.

"The public is not impressed with his claims of debt reduction because it knows the government is continually shifting the load onto the municipalities," he said.

"Just like Alberta," interjected John Squire (CCF-Alberta) alluding to the Social Credit government of Alberta.

Mr. Cox challenged Premier Bennett's claim that his finance policies were the same as those of Ontario.

He questioned the need for the government's new bridge at Kelowna stating that it carried little traffic even at weekends and was of little importance compared with the Second Narrows Bridge in Vancouver.

Mr. Cox commended the government's plan to pay 50 per cent of the fees of top university students but urged more assistance for rank-and-file students in meeting the higher costs of university education.

Wood Pulp Output Dropped Last Year

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian production of wood pulp in 1958 was 9,906,712 tons, a decrease of 2.7 per cent from 1957's output of 10,176,707; the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association has announced.

The reduced production resulted from lower levels of newsprint production early in the year the association said.

Plane Load of Delegates On Ferry Crisis Suggested

Victoria businessmen should charter a plane, fill it with a delegation and fly to Ottawa to demand federal action on the ferry crisis, Ald. Elmer McEwen said Thursday.

He made his suggestion after the city council authorized Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell to take any action he "sees fit in the interests of citizens."

Ald. Dowell indicated he would call a meeting of inter-municipal committee today, wire a protest to Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and possibly arrange for a civic delegation to go to Ottawa.

"I think you should ask the people that will be hurt most by the ferry suspension to charter a plane and go down to Ottawa together," said Ald. McEwen.

"One or two city delegates will not have much strength but if a loaded plane landed on Parliament Hill it would have a powerful effect."

Ald. McEwen also said there should be a new appreciation now for past efforts by former mayor Claude Harrison which had brought him ridicule.

"He is probably the one man today best qualified to present the arguments on the government's obligations under the terms of union," Ald. McEwen said.

"I believe that as a matter of honor, the taxpayers of Canada would want the terms of union lived up to."

(Under the terms of union, the federal government undertook responsibility to maintain ship connections between the Mainland and Vancouver Island through the CPR, Mr. Harrison has argued.)

However, Ald. McEwen said there is no reason to flog the CPR because it cannot carry on financially.

CPR FERRY STOPPAGE 'STRIKE' SAYS CCFer

Canadian Pacific in effect has "gone on strike" by cutting off its ferry services between Victoria and the mainland, Cedric Cox, the CCF member for Burnaby, charged in the legislature Thursday.

"If our merchant seamen go on strike they are accused of undermining our economy, yet the CPR, it seems, can get away with it."

"I do not see why we should be going out of our way to get the CPR off the hook."

"They were given millions of acres of lands and mineral rights all across Canada and they have a definite responsibility to the public."

"I say they should keep their ships running until such time as we have our own (provincial government) ferries in operation."

Vancouver Gypped On Taxes Says SC

Vancouver is not receiving its fair share of the tax dollar because it is considered a rich area compared with other cities and municipalities, F. M. Sharp (SC-Vancouver East) told the legislature Wednesday.

"Assessments are high and this means the average taxpayer is now paying the limit on property in Vancouver. "Vancouver is like the Big Brother of all other cities and municipalities and, while we are building up our smaller relatives, we are doing it at the expense and detriment of this fine city."

HURTS ALL B.C.

"Vancouver is being forced into a state of financial malnutrition and this condition is neither good for the city of Vancouver or the province of British Columbia."

He recommended more assistance for highway and construction and bridges, replacement of the Fraser Street bridge, and a new formula for construction costs.

Mr. Sharp suggested construction of a breakwater at Locarno Beach, English Bay, to be built on a one-third shareable basis with the city and the federal government.

"This would provide shelter for about 5,000 pleasure boats," he said.

Mr. Sharp said development has begun on a public housing project in the vicinity of 41st and Nanaimo in Vancouver East.

CAUGHT IN VICE

"I must congratulate this government on its participation in a scheme which is a sample of what can be accomplished with the co-operation of three level of government."

"In the existing housing situation, we cannot put too much effort, energy and money into such projects. . . Pensioners and people in low income groups are caught in the vice of high costs of accommodation, very often at the mercy of heartless landlords."

"And advantage is sometimes taken of their dire circumstances."

CHEMAINUS—Ed Hess has been elected president of the Chemainus Branch, Canadian Red Cross Society.

Other officers are S. J. Pratt, vice-president, and Mrs. F. Saunders, secretary-treasurer. Bryce Page was named honorary president, and Dr. R. N. Dick and Mrs. J. R. Robinson honorary vice-presidents.

Jack Miller was appointed campaign chairman for 1959.

Following committees and chairmen were appointed: disaster relief, Mrs. M. Groner; home nursing, Mrs. D. Murray; emergency blood donors, Miss E. Clayton; blood clinics, hospital auxiliary; loan cupboard, Mrs. H. Thorne; sewing, IWA auxiliary; quilting, Pythian Sisters; knitting, Mrs. M. James.

Annual reports showed $1,648 was raised here last year for the Red Cross, 161 pints of blood obtained at the blood clinic, 29 Red Cross swimming and water safety certificates were issued.

Three burned-out and one needy family were assisted.

BLOOD CLINICS

There will be two blood donor clinics this year in April and November.

Boundaries of the branch were defined as Lagoon Bridge in the north and Chemainus River Bridge to the south.

Regional representative Mrs. L. Dobbyn, spoke briefly on the work of the Canadian Red Cross.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Russell Holdstein, aged 12, Cleveland Heights, Ohio, for his question:

Does a Tree Ever Stop Growing?

A tree goes on growing all its life. The growth cells circle the trunk, just below the bark. In every growing season, each growth cell splits lengthwise down the middle and becomes two cells. Usually, the cell on the outside then becomes a growth cell. Ring after ring of new wood cells is added around the trunk of the tree and this goes on throughout the life of the tree.

The tree begins life as a slender sapling. Each year it gets stouter as a new circle of wood is added around its trunk. In time, all the fetch and carry work is done by the new wood cells around the outer edge of the trunk. The central wood becomes dry and hard. Its only job is to support the lofty branches of the tree.

The heartwood, in the centre of the trunk is actually dead wood. Because it is dry and hard, it is often attacked by beetles, birds or bacteria. It may become chewed up and crumble away. Then we have a hollow tree, a tree with a hole in the centre of its trunk.

Oldest Trees Not Largest

Since a tree adds new wood each year, we would expect the oldest trees to be the biggest trees. In the main this is true. Until recently, everyone thought the oldest trees were the giant Sequoias of California. The giant of these giants is called General Sherman. The General stands in Sequia National Park in the Sierra Nevada Mountains. He is 275 feet tall, and is estimated to be 3,500 years old.

The General may still be the biggest tree in the world. But we have recently discovered that he is not the oldest. About 100-miles north of the Sequoias there are still older trees. And these fellows are small and twisted dwarfs. These ancient trees have learned to live in harsh conditions of cold and drought, adding only a few cells at a time.

Andy sends a Hammond's Ambassador World Atlas to Heather Atkins, age 12, Ottawa, Ont., for her question: How do migrating birds know their way?

Nature, it seems, likes us to be curious. For proper curiosity is usually rewarded. However, Mother Nature does not make it easy for us. She holds on to her secrets with might and main. There are many, many questions to which we do not know the answers. This is one of them.

Every year we are sad to see the birds fly south, and every year we rejoice to see them come back. We know a good deal about where they go and a good deal about why they go. But how they manage to find their way to and fro nobody knows, as yet.

Every year we learn of new miracles performed by migrating birds. The little Arctic tern flies all the way from the Arctic Circle to the Antarctic Circle and back. The midge humming bird flies 500 miles Rodents and other animals like to hide in a hollow tree and this helps to enlarge the hole. The tree becomes an apartment house for woodland creatures.

This does not bother the tree at all. It will go on living and growing so long as there is a sturdy trunk to support its branches and a connected system of new wood to carry sap to and fro. Every season, new wood will be added around the trunk. And these new cells carry up moisture from the roots and distribute the food-bearing sap.

Trees do not die of old age. An old hollow tree may collapse. At any age a tree may be attacked and destroyed by disease. A porcupine may come along and chew off a ring of bark clear around the trunk of the tree. This unfortunate tree will die. Some trees are felled by storms and some by the lumberman's axe. But so long as the tree has a connected network of new wood cells to fetch and carry it will live and while it lives it will grow.

nonstop across the Gulf of Mexico. And a family of killers will come back to the same corner of the same meadow year after year. No one knows how these feathered darlings know what to do.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

New Try Planned By Civil Servants

B.C. Government Employees' Association executive will ask the provincial cabinet to boost the budget estimate to $1,500,000 for wage increases.

The present allocation is "completely unacceptable," BCGEA general secretary Ed. O'Connor said.

This amount would cover only half the increases required if the association's 11,000 members had their salaries raised to 1959 industrial wage levels.

He said the premier had promised last fall his budget would "meet the requirements."

50% Reduction In Crofton Pulp Shipments

CHEMAINUS — Waterborne shipments of lumber from Chemainus and Crofton rose in January over the previous month, while pulp shipments from Crofton dropped to less than half the December total.

A total of 16,684,751 board feet of lumber was shipped from the local ports, while a total of 3,388 tons of pulp was shipped to various overseas markets from B.C. Forest Products' Crofton Pulp mill.

Lumber shipments last month were: United Kingdom, 6,143,751 board feet; Africa, 3,915,000; Australia, 2,927,000; Puerto Rico, 2,163,000; U.S.A., 1,636,000.

Other exports last month included 1,711 tons of pulp chips to American markets and 500 squares of cedar shingles to the United Kingdom.

During 19-week course, to end May 31, boys will learn to handle hose, pumps, fire extinguishers, masks, and ladders, and will have training in burning buildings. (Poskitt Photo.)

AUTO FUMES KILLED WOMAN

NANAIMO (CP)—A coroner's jury Thursday ruled the death Jan. 28 of Mrs. Jean Morrell, 39, of Nanaimo was due to asphyxiation from carbon monoxide poisoning. Mrs. Morrell's body was found in the family car about one mile from her home.

Good Money Managers For Oldsters

NANAIMO — One of the largest organizations here, the 600-member Old Age Pensioners' Organization, is also one of the best off financially.

It boasts a $3,000 building fund to implement plans the OAPO has had under consideration for some years. Director of the financial policy is Lamont Ross, former city alderman.

President of the group here is Joseph Sutton.

"Though most of us are not physically able to do much, we like to feel we have an influential voice in community affairs," he said.

Current day cry for public power in B.C. isn't something new — the late premier John Hart raised it 14 years ago.

This was told to the Shrum Commission Thursday by C. W. Nash, lead director for the B.C. Power Commission.

Mr. Nash recalled that in 1945 premier Hart had the New York engineering firm of W. C. Gilman & Company, make a report on the possible acquisition of the B.C. Electric Railway Company system.

After studying the report, premier Hart said: "After a great deal of consideration, I firmly believe it is in the best interest of the development of this province for the people to control the entire hydro-electric power and light services now being used and which may be used for sale to the public."

DISAGREEMENT

No action was taken, apparently because of some disagreements among municipalities over the implementation of recommendations in the report.

The Power Commission started operations "without the generating facilities or the electrical load of the lower mainland or southern Vancouver Island."

Under the Gilman report, the PC would handle generation and transmission outside municipal boundaries and would sell power to municipalities which would distribute it.

Jobs for 6 at Lake In Winter Work Plan

CHEMAINUS — Six men have been hired by the municipality of North Cowichan under the federal aid winter work program to work on the Fuller's Lake park project.

The six men, some of whom have been out of work for several weeks, began work Monday.

They will work under the direction of the Fuller's Lake park committee and the municipal works superintendent, and receive $1.67 an hour. Cost of hiring the men will be shared equally by the municipality and the federal government.

They will continue work on the first phase of the park development, preparing the general picnic area for public use this summer. They will also clear a path along the lake foreshore to the south end where a boat launching ramp is to be constructed.

All stumps in the planned picnic area were cleared last week and the park is rapidly taking shape. The summer park is expected to be a big tourist attraction.

New Goldstream Campsites Ready for Use by April 1

The new provincial campsites and picnic grounds at Goldstream are expected to be completed by April 1, officials said Thursday.

The project was slowed earlier by staff reductions, but 50 men are now on the job, working in two shifts. Over 70 of the proposed 147 campsites are now ready for use.

Major work remaining is laying of water lines. Provincial parks officials say the Goldstream project will be a showpiece for the parks system. A rustic bridge and a nature museum are planned as future additions.

Parks employees are also clearing for 50 additional campsites at Ivy Green Park near Ladysmith.

Binding Repayment Clause Goes Into Parking Bylaw

City council Thursday launched proceedings to bind future councils to using parking meter revenues to pay off the $1,000,000 View Street parking and mall development.

It gave three readings to two bylaws which set up the procedure for repayment. A reserve fund will be established into which all parking meter revenues will be placed to make annual repayments of the bonds, provide costs of operating meters and, siphon $106,000 (the net profit in 1958) into general revenue each year.

City council is expected to double parking meter rates but has said it will continue using the present level of meter revenue for general purposes to keep the mill rate down. Only the extra revenue is intended to be used to repay the $1,000,000 bond issue.

City solicitor was instructed to take steps to obtain provincial validation of the procedure which would commit future councils to follow it.

If meter revenues are not sufficient to accomplish the three aims, the deficiency will be made up out of general revenue.

'Mr. Smith Looking for Publicity'

Aldermen also blasted J. Donald Smith, Victoria MLA and a defeated alderman, for his criticism of the View Street development.

"I think Mr. Smith is looking for publicity or something," said Ald. M. H. Mooney. "I can't figure out what is in his mind."

Ald. Mooney said he resents "any suggestion that we pushed this on the people."

"We've been studying ways to provide off-street parking since 1950. We've investigated every possibility and thoroughly covered all ways."

"I don't want the people to think we are covering up anything because we are not."

He said if a better plan was suggested to council "it would be considered but so far there hasn't been anything."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said Mr. Smith had "misrepresented" the city's intentions and actions by claiming that the cost of each car space in the parking garage would approximate $8,000 "when actually it will be about $950."

The city did everything it could to inform the voters about the parking plan before December's favorable vote.

"He hasn't mentioned anything about the malls or the beautification aspects," said Ald. Edgelow. "This is a downtown improvement plan to revitalize the downtown area, not just a parking plan."

"The Financial Post said

Civil Defence in Schools Urged by Women's Council

OTTAWA (CP) — Establishment of a Civil Defence program for Canadian school children was urged today in a brief to the federal cabinet by the National Council of Women.

The council said there is little Civil Defence preparation or education included in school programs, and described this as "a situation conducive to chaotic panic in time of disaster."

Planning of a program for all Canadian schools by the National Civil Defence Board in Ottawa was urged by the council, which said this program then could be incorporated into school systems "at the discretion of each province."

Other proposals raised in the brief to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and members of his cabinet:

The immigration department should relax its regulations on entry into Canada of refugees now in German and Austrian camps, particularly in the case of divided families and the ill and infirm.

The 10-per-cent sales tax should be removed from drugs and pharmaceuticals, which are "basic necessities in maintaining the health of citizens, ranking on an equal basis with food."

Criminal courts should hear mandatory pre-sentence reports on all convicts between 16 and 21, and in all cases where there is a possibility of imprisonment for two years or more.

The Criminal Code should be amended to provide that guilty pleas will not be accepted from any person under 21 who is not represented by counsel at his trial.

Air guns and air pistols should be banned from manufacture or sale in Canada, along with all toy guns unless they are painted in bright colors such as red, yellow or green.

New Forest Fire Prevention Plan

A new forest fire control scheme is under consideration for British Columbia, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston announced Thursday.

DOCKERS' BOSS HAILS SOVIET TRADE UNIONS

LONDON (Reuters)—Tass News Agency today quoted Harry Bridges, chairman of the International Longshoremen's Union, as saying Russian union organization and election methods "are more democratic than in many American trade unions."

Bridges, who has been in Russia a week as a guest of the Russian trade union central council, said if the American Federation of Labor sent delegates to Russia "they would learn that what an American worker hears about Russia is lies and slanderous propaganda."

Democracy Established In Nepal

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters)—King Mahendra of Nepal Thursday promulgated his country's first democratic constitution, providing for a constitutional monarchy with two Houses of Parliament and a cabinet responsible to the Lower House.

The constitution, drafted with the help of British lawyer Sir Ivor Jennings, will come into force on a date to be announced later by the King.

Its provision is for general elections—the first in Nepal's history—on Feb. 18, when the Nepalese will choose 169 members of the new Lower House. The Upper House will have 36 members, 18 elected by the Lower House and 18 nominated by the King.

The constitution climaxes eight years of political upheaval since a former king in 1960 overthrew the hereditary prime ministers of the Rana family.

Nepal, with Mount Everest within its borders, is sandwiched between India and Tibet. Its population was estimated at 8,337,537 in 1955.

Talks are underway between the provincial forestry department and Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association for refinement of a broad scheme to co-ordinate industry and the forest service under a single authority.

The plan involves establishment of a central registry of men who could provide on-the-spot leadership in various areas.

The minister told the legislature the talks involve co-operative planning of roads and trails for inter-communication in fire emergencies.

NEW RATES OF PAY

The over-all campaign is "a war for survival" he thought, and in line with this principle, he said revised rates of pay for firefighters and for equipment rentals, are also under study.

Earlier in his talk, he indicated that industrial forest closures may be dropped as a fire protective measure, but recreational closures of wooded areas would still be ordered in times of high hazard.

LIGHTNING WORST

The minister said 28 per cent of all fires and 75 per cent of forest losses, were caused by lightning. A further 7.1 per cent of damage and loss was due to careless smokers.

"If the right kind of men are in the right places in our woods, the resulting losses from fires might not be so great. Recreational closures are another matter. I am sure there will continue to be times when these must be proposed."

Mr. Williston said 1958 was the worst forest fire year on record. Total cost of fighting 4,120 fires was $5,500,000—the government paid $4,528,137 over and above the normal vote for forest protection, and industry paid the balance.

Previous high was recorded in 1951 when fires cost the provincial fire fighting service $1,426,000.

Lost in forest stumpage income in 1958 was $7,917,235. The total loss to the economy of the province would be many times this figure, the minister stated.

SHAH REZA PAHLEVI

Shah of Iran Has His Eye On Princess

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuters)—Shah Reza Pahlavi of Iran would like to marry Princess Maria Gabriella, daughter of Italy's ex-king Umberto, informed circles said Thursday.

The Shah, 39, divorced his second wife, Soraya, last April because she had failed to bear him an heir to the throne in seven years as queen. His first wife, whom he divorced in 1948 after nine years of marriage, was Princess Fawzia, sister of Egypt's ex-king Farouk.

Chief stumbling blocks to taking 18-year-old Princess Maria as queen is that the Iranian constitution requires the queen to be a Moslem. Tehran's morning newspaper Farman reports that the pretty Italian princess, now a Roman Catholic, would soon become a Moslem.

Britain Blasts U.S. For Cheating

MONTREAL (CP)—Britain accused the United States Thursday of submitting inaccurate and misleading information at a special meeting of the International Civil Aviation Organization to consider competing systems for navigational aids.

The information was turned in by the U.S. to bolster its case in favor of continued use of a U.S.-designed system, VOR, a high-frequency line in general use now. It was adopted by ICAO 10 years ago as a general standard until 1966.

Britain has asked the organization to accept a new system, called Decca navigation, claiming it is more efficient in areas where air traffic is heavy. The system was British-developed.

Export orders for electronics equipment worth millions of dollars hinge on ICAO's decision on the matter. Delegates from 32 countries are attending the sessions.

The British charges were contained in a working paper distributed to delegates Thursday. They referred to a document drafted by the Air Transport Association of America and adopted by the U.S. as part of its case.

Britain dismissed some U.S. statements as "completely incorrect," "peculiar," "difficult to follow" and "completely incomprehensible."

72-MPH Gusts Rip Power Lines

Log Boom Breaks Up

Gale-force winds that reached 72 miles per hour in gusts caused two widespread power failures early this morning and broke up a log boom at Cadboro Bay.

Weatherman William MacKie said the southeast wind began picking up speed at midnight, and by 4 a.m. it was holding average speed of 40 to 45 miles per hour, with many gusts up to 60 miles, and about two each hour that touched 70 miles per hour.

There was one gust of 71 miles per hour shortly after 4, and the 72-mile blast occurred at 9 a.m. Speed was still holding the high average at press time.

POWER-OUT
B.C. Electric officials said power in the Burnside area went off at 2 a.m. for two hours, and that at 4 a.m. Victoria West and Esquimalt were darkened, and were without power for from one and one-half to two hours.

Trees falling across power lines were blamed for outages at Esquimalt Lagoon and Cherry Point, near Cobble Hill, and flying branches disrupted power to individual homes.

Line crews were on duty all night, the company spokesman said, and were able to restore service to most areas before customers knew there had been a power failure.

Electric clocks which were up to two hours slow this morning were the only signs to most people that power had been cut.

One other widespread outage occurred near Oak Bay Junction, where street lights and electric signs were out for a few minutes.

300 LOOSE LOGS
A boom broke up in Cadboro Bay, and close to 300 logs were strewn along the beach immediately below Hibbens Close. Another two booms moored in the vicinity escaped damage from the wind and waves.

Other waterfront damage was negligible as small craft stayed in shelter during the blow.

B.C. Telephone Co. reported one pole down and only a few isolated cases of loss of service.

Engineering staffs reported the only signs of damage they could find were broken limbs from trees.

USED-TO IT
Trees in this area stand up well to the southeast winter wind because it is the prevailing wind, and the trees have developed root systems to withstand it, one works foreman said.

"It would be different if we had a westerly that strong," he said. "There would be trees down all over the place."

Mr. Mackie said the storm which caused the gale was centred today offshore from southern Washington, and was moving southward.

As it progresses winds will decrease behind it, he said, and should be down to 20 miles per hour from the east by Saturday. There may be showers tonight, and although skies will be cloudy Saturday, there is little sign of rain. Temperatures will range between 38 and 43 degrees tonight and Saturday.

UBC Support Hailed By College Officials

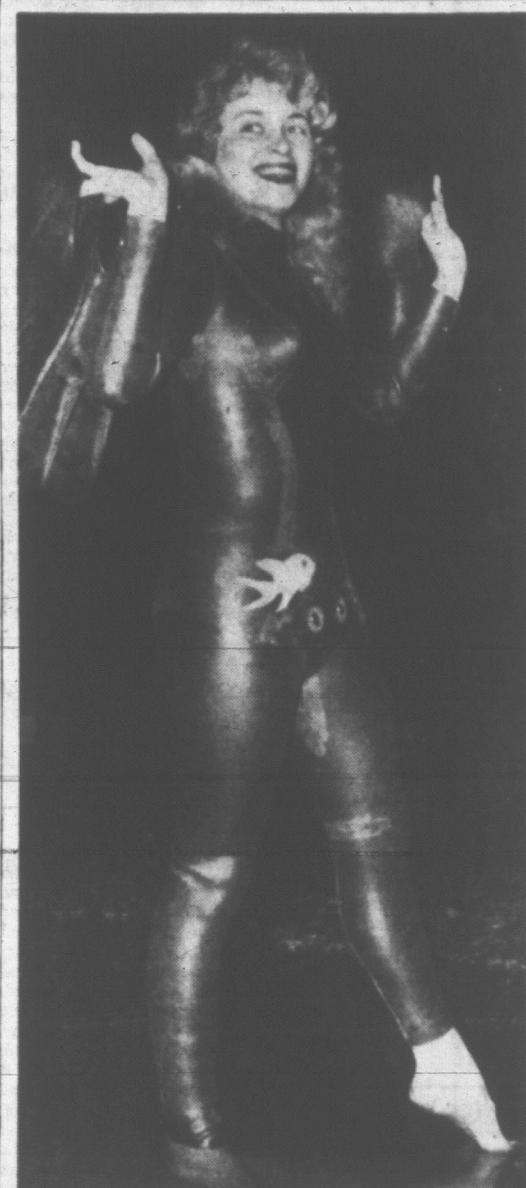

University of B.C.'s "warm support" for Victoria College's drive to become a four-year institution was applauded here today.

Dean Geoffrey Andrew, deputy to the UBC president, Thursday said Victoria College was well on its way to that goal and it was an ideal institution for development into a first-class academic institution.

"I think it was a very excellent statement of our situation," commented Judge J. B. Clearhue, president of Victoria College council.

"I'm glad it was made. It shows the warm co-operation that exists between the college and the university."

Dr. Harry Hickman, principal of the college, said: "I am glad to see such a

RAIN DROP REALLY HIT RIGHT SPOT

The legislative labor committee today found a winter work project close at hand when members met in the cedar room of the legislative buildings.

Herbert Bruch (S.C., Esquimalt) noticed drops of water falling around him—the ceiling was leaking.

Work was ordered to begin immediately.

'Do It Now' Gets Jobs For 651

Some 651 men are working today because of the annual "Do It Now" campaign, the Greater Victoria winter employment committee reported today.

It added that the campaign also has prompted scheduling of projects that will employ another 200-250 men soon.

The work was created by business and government projects intended to ease seasonal unemployment.

Although no methods of determining how much additional work has been created by householders who are co-operating with the campaign, the committee said reports from the building industry "indicates the volume of such additional work is quite high."

ONLY FRACTION

But the committee warned that the 651 men known to be working as a result of the campaign, represents only a fraction of the 3959 men who still need jobs.

"The co-operation of all citizens is needed to continue the campaign until the quantity of work available in winter and summer is equalled off to full year-round employment," the committee said.

'To Build a Better Sputnik You Give a Bigger Subsidy'

By HAL MALONE

The B.C. government may be first in Canada in its plan to share tuition fees of all first and second-class students entering University of B.C. and Victoria College, but it is not foremost in education subsidies.

Russian is the world leader in education subsidization. Authority for this is Dr. W. R. Hibbard, manager of the alloy studies section of the General Electric research laboratory in Schenectady, N.Y.

Dr. Hibbard's observations are based on a three-weeks tour of Russia made with eight other leading metallurgists, scientists and educators.

In Victoria today, Dr. Hibbard revealed Nikita Khrushchev's scheme to build better students and scientists to build better Sputniks and other commodities to blow places apart.

Here is how Mr. K. operates: Students begin seven years of primary education when they are seven. Upon completion they are analyzed to find out if there are any "squares."

The top brains go to high school and on to college for five years. Their tuition is paid and they are paid — to study.

Russian students whose low ballast of intelligence does not entitle them to a college education are sent to three-year technical institutes. The remainder (strictly sub-standard material) are sent to vocational schools for a short term.

NO OPTION
Those who enter college in Russia lack the option of taking such difficult western courses as Advanced Doodling or How to Read a TV Schedule.

As Dr. Hibbard says: "The Russian leaders make all the decisions. They are bent on beating the west economically and scientifically. To achieve this they build up certain industries, such as steel, at the expense of other industries.

"This means that at the time students are entering college, the government may want an entire group to take courses leading to proficiency in steel operations. Or they might push another batch of students into nuclear physics.

"Once enrolled, students are given an incentive to lead their class. The top students get the best and highest paying jobs in Moscow and other large cities.

The remainder are shuffled off to Buffalo or Sverdlovsk or some other outpost where conditions are apt to turn a comrade's stomach.

SHIP'S BADGE of HMCS Beacon Hill, carved on a plaque, was presented to city council Thursday by the frigate's skipper, Lt.-Cmdr. Walter Blandy (left) as a token of the ship's long association with Victoria. Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell accepted the plaque. The warship was named after the city park and formally "adopted" by the City of Victoria several years ago. (RCN Photo.)

CRACKS SHOW IN BUILDING; TRAFFIC TIE-UP

She Joined Club to Make It a Twosome in Family

By JUDY NICHOLSON

A woman's group cannot thrive on social affairs only—it must have the satisfaction of working for a cause. This is the opinion of Mrs. George Megaw, newly-elected president of Oak Bay Kiwanis.

"When our group was first organized, it was decided that we stick to volunteer work, rather than raising large sums of money. This way, we found we had more time to give to the handicapped and to elderly pensioners... the club's two projects."

Mrs. Megaw, a vivacious and attractive person, moved to Victoria from Fresno, Calif., with her husband and son, George, Jr.

"When my husband joined the Oak Bay Kiwanis in 1953, I decided that it would be fun to make it a family team, so became a member of Kiwanis."

"As a matter of fact, the Oak Bay group is the oldest in Victoria, being chartered in 1947."

Owning and managing a market store in Cadboro Bay kept the Megaw family busy until recently, when they sold out.

GREEN THUMB

Now Mrs. Megaw spends most of her time at her favorite hobby... gardening. She has her own greenhouse where she proves her versatility as the one in the family with the "green thumb."

"There I grow my roses," she says proudly.

The Megaws have a real home. George, Jr., is at University of British Columbia studying maths and science, but when he's home, the waterfront house is buzzing with the voices of young people. A barbecue in the front garden adds much to summer enjoyment for the family and many a young Victorian will boast of the marvelous parties he or she has attended there.

Mrs. Megaw explains "I feel that opening our home to friends is like opening our hearts, it gives us such satisfaction."

When the weather is fine, Mr. and Mrs. Megaw are both ardent golfers. They play at Ardmore in West Saanich.

"It keeps us fit," laughs Mrs. Megaw. Talents at home add to Mrs. Megaw's charm. Modestly she says:

"I make many of my clothes and design and make all my hats." In fact, it's quite a joke with the two men in our house... my hats, I mean. Every time I concoct a new chapeau, I can be sure there will be some pithy remarks from one of the two Georges... but I guess I'm lucky because the criticism, good or bad, is always worth while!"

Prophecy True for Mme. Charles de Gaulle

PARIS (NEA) — Mme. Charles de Gaulle was a shy teen-ager when a gypsy fortune teller predicted "some day you will be almost a queen".

Being a studious girl, it's doubtful that the former Yvonne Vendroux paid much attention to the prophecy. But perhaps she has recalled it—as an old schoolgirl friend did—now that she has moved into the elegant Elysee Palace, home of French presidents.

In republican France, this is as close as any woman gets to being queen.

Temperamentally, the new first lady of France would not be cut out for the role she now must fill save for two factors. Whatever her husband does, she believes is right, and wherever he goes she has been by his side.

It has been that way since the quiet Yvonne met the equally reserved Lieut. Charles de Gaulle 40 years ago.

The ice was broken between the shy couple when De Gaulle spilled a drink on Yvonne's dress.

Mme. de Gaulle cares little for clothes, and has never used lipstick or makeup. Recently her daughter Elizabeth told her: "Mother, you will now have to think a little more about your wardrobe."

Apparently—to the horror of chic Parisiennes—she has bought in the last five years only five suits, three coats and a few summer dresses. All were in variations of grey, navy or black. Under prodding from her daughter, she finally went to the Jacques Heim fashion house and bought several formal gowns.

It's unlikely, however, that there will be much purely social entertaining while the De Gaulles inhabit the gilded Elysee. The general has always considered such functions as frivolous and a waste of time.

But if Yvonne de Gaulle is not the complete hostess, she does have the talents and interests of many French women of her generation.

She is an expert needle-woman, who has embroidered all the household linen for the De Gaulle's personal home at Colombey-les-deux-Eglises in eastern France. She also knits tirelessly for her grandchildren.

Her pet hobby is gardening, and it was she who designed the great floral Cross of Lorraine that decorates the lawn of their home.

For Mme. de Gaulle, her home is the source of many pleasant memories. She runs the rambling, unpretentious residence with a cook and a maid.

Often she has supervised the annual jam-making sessions and the brewing of plum cordials, a favorite attraction in the household.

It was also here that Mme. de Gaulle cared for her daughter Anne during her last years. Anne was mentally retarded and died at the age of 20.

In memory of their daughter, the De Gaulles have used the royalties from the general's memoirs to establish a home outside Paris where 36 mentally deficient girls are cared for by a group of nuns.

Mme. de Gaulle has visited the home regularly since its establishment, and despite the many new demands on her time and energies, it is likely to be one habit that she will not change.

Hospital Auxiliary Hold Open House and Shower

Hearts and cupid in Valentine theme, decorated the recreation room of Gorge Road Hospital Wednesday afternoon, for the fourth annual open house and linen shower of the hospital's auxiliary.

Tea was served from an attractively arranged table centered with a large red Valentine cake, flanked at four sides by white candles.

Mrs. C. C. Warren, president of hospital board, Mrs. R. G. Altken, president of group and Mrs. E. R. Owen received the many guests.

Convenor was Mrs. C. Douglas. Donations of linen from visitors were received by Mrs. G. F. Hilliard, Mrs. P. J. Woolley and Mrs. V. Mawer.

During the afternoon, guests were shown through the hospital. Highlight of the tour was the program presented in occupational therapy room where patients showed their work. Mrs. S. Smith and Mrs. F. Campbell were tour guides.

Tea and refreshments were

'VINCENT THE BUG' SHOT DOWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vincent (The Bug) McGowan, a berserk, ex-convict who critically wounded his estranged wife, was shot and wounded today when he tried to escape police who had been searching for him for 18 hours.

Detectives seized the 27-year-old gunman as he left an upper East Side apartment, but he punched one of the detectives and bolted. He was brought down with a shot in the back and taken to Metropolitan Hospital.

A city-wide hunt for McGowan began Thursday when he shot his telephone operator wife, Christine, 25, in the abdomen with a pistol when she refused his plea for reconciliation.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

Old Firehall New Site For Market?

City fire wardens committee Thursday was asked by city council to investigate the possibilities of relocating the public market in the old firehall on Yates near Camosun when the present firehall is vacated.

Ald. A. I. Curtis, firewardens' chairman, said the public market's future was being studied intensively "and some recommendation will be coming forward."

It is known that the possibility of erecting a row of stalls on the present site, when the building is torn down for a parking lot, is under consideration.

Jack Shrimpton, 1122 Chapman, was congratulated by city council on his appointment as director of the Victoria Girls' Drill Corps.

Mr. Shrimpton, the corps drum major for the past 15 years, succeeds the late Capt. Norman Foster who founded the organization.

The Optimist Club's request for permission to sell Easter baskets door-to-door was turned down but council was told that the club still could conduct the sale if it paid a $60 pedlar's trade licence for every person selling the baskets.

Aldermen decided to notify Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith that they would be pleased if he introduces a bill in the Legislature seeking tax-exemptions on improvements to older houses.

Mr. Smith sought council's opinion on the proposal.

Ald. A. I. Curtis said the city could not make representations on its own and suggested that it be left in the hands of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities.

But Ald. D. J. Proudfoot said Mr. Smith should be asked to introduce a bill for first reading to obtain the views of other MLAs in the normal manner.

Argyle Sees Space Man In Two Years

The United States within two years might have the required know-how to enable it to send a manned satellite into space, according to P. E. Argyle, technical officer at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Saanich.

Speaking at a meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, Victoria Centre, Thursday, Mr. Argyle said the problem of how to bring the satellite back to earth would have to be solved first before man could be sent into space.

Strong evidence indicated, he said, that the United States would solve this problem in two years.

Store Employees, Builders Flee When Wall Collapses in Oak Bay

Business came to a standstill and three people narrowly escaped injury Thursday when the end wall of a building in the Oak Bay business section collapsed.

The lower portion of the east wall of a block incorporating the Oak Bay Theatre, Club Tango, Maison Dudley, and Oak Bay Produce split and fell away from the building.

Worst hit were the operators of Oak Bay Produce, Mr. and Mrs. Gee Gain, and daughter Sue, 17, Queens.

'CRACK, RUMBLE'

Mrs. Gain and her daughter were in the store when they heard "a terrific crack and rumble" and fled into the street only seconds before the wall fell out and the floor buckled, sending thousands of pounds of produce skidding from the shelves.

Owner of Maison Dudley, G. D. Smith, 3455 St. Patrick, also escaped to the street before the shifting foundations jammed his door shut.

Workmen on a site nearby underneath the tottering wall fled as the heavy concrete began to buckle.

Miss Gain and her mother were in the store when they heard the first crack and Mrs. Gain said: "Come on, Sue, let's get out of here."

"Only a few minutes later," Miss Gain said, "the lower wall which is the foundation collapsed."

Greatest danger lay in the possibility of escaping gas from damaged pipes exploding in the ruins, but B.C. Electric gas division officials were quickly on hand to cut off the supply.

BASE WEAKENED

The accident is thought to have been caused by weakening of the foundation base under the concrete walls.

An excavation had been made on adjoining property by A. K. Smalley Construction in preparation for the construction of a new store block.

A buttressed wooden fence, erected by the company, some eight feet from the building, prevented the sagging wall from falling completely and possibly carrying away most of the east end of the building.

Building inspector Kenneth Cunningham said other stores in the block were not affected by the slide.

Owner of the Club Tango, Ed Hicks, said the building inspector told him he won't be able to hold public dances and parties in his upper floor rooms until repairs are made.

DANCES CUT

"I imagine everything will have to be cancelled for two weeks," he said.

The annual Order of De Molay, Victoria Chapter, Valentine dance scheduled for today is "definitely cancelled."

City May Hire Industrial Commissioner

City Council may set up an industrial commission this year if its present mood prevails.

Aldermen were unanimous Thursday in directing finance committee to study feasibility of hiring an industrial commissioner and report back at budget time.

Suggestion was made by Ald. Hugh Ramsay who said an industrial commissioner could analyze the industrial potential here and then act as the city's envoy in trying to "entice" industry to the city.

He said "it should be clear that we are interested only in secondary industry, not the big primary ones that could spoil the city."

Earlier, Ald. Geoffrey Edgell said he had received inquiries from four firms interested in locating here. Council voted to send appropriate information to the companies outlining advantages Victoria has to offer.

THERE IS HATE IN NEWFOUNDLAND

IWA Must Go—Premier

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood has accused the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) of causing trouble in Newfoundland and asked loggers to throw the union out of the province.

In a special radio and television speech Thursday night, he told the province's 20,000 full and part-time pulpwood loggers, 1,200 of whom have been on strike since Dec. 31, to form a new union.

"There is hate in Newfoundland tonight, bitter and ugly," the premier said. "There is more lawlessness, more violence, more lies, more falsehood, more cheating, more deceit in the past four weeks than we ever saw in Newfoundland before."

H. Landon Ladd, district president of the IWA, termed the speech "hysterical and inflammatory."

SUPPORTS COMPANY

Besides attacking the union, Mr. Smallwood said he was throwing the full weight of the provincial government on the side of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company, hit by loggers' strike in the central Newfoundland town of Grand Falls.

There has been considerable unrest at the town. A special RCMP squad of about 60 men is said to have been moved there.

Mr. Smallwood said the "IWA never will and never can win in Newfoundland." He said the government doesn't want the IWA and will never work with its officials, talk to them, never answer a telegram from them, never have anything to do with them.

"There is not enough room in Newfoundland for the government and the IWA at the same time. One or the other must go. It is not a strike they have started—it is a civil war."

Mr. Ladd called on striking loggers and pickets to "maintain order at all costs" while heavily-reinforced RCMP patrols walked the streets of Grand Falls.

Albert Martin, general manager of Bowaters Pulp & Paper Company at Corner Brook, said: "I think he (Mr. Smallwood) is a very courageous man. I will be glad to support the premier in his stand. I will do anything in my power to bring peace and prosperity to the loggers of Newfoundland."

IWA loggers seek an hourly increase of five cents over a two-year period and a six-hour reduction in the 60-hour work week without loss of take-home pay. That would give them $1.22 an hour instead of the present $1.05.

Government Seeks Sloan Successor

The B.C. government is searching for a forestry adviser to succeed the late Gordon Sloan, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston announced Thursday.

Meanwhile, Mr. Williston will hold public hearings on tree farm licence applications which have been pending, and will seek appointment of a judge to settle the appealed application of Empire Mills of Squamish. Mr. Sloan was involved in this matter at the time of his death.

The same judge will be asked to review evidence in the general matter of tree farm licences bidding on crown timber in public working circles.

NEVER WRITTEN

Mr. Sloan had conducted an enquiry but had not written his report at the time of his passing.

In his 1956 report, Mr. Sloan recommended Powell River Company, Canadian Forest Products Ltd. and Crown Zellerbach as the best candidates for consideration in completing their tree licence plans, said Mr. Williston.

"In this regard, the first two companies have advertised notice of their intention to apply. Mr. Sloan had planned to hold a series of public hearings relative to each proposal." It is these hearings which the minister will hold.

"The government plans to continue a search for a successor for the Honorable Mr. Sloan. The task will not be easy and it is not expected a decision will be reached immediately."

"If an appreciable delay occurs, I propose to hold the public hearings referred to above, so that these applications, so long deferred, may be given consideration," said Mr. Williston.

ADVERTISER AT WORK!

One of advertising's biggest jobs is to attract attention. As you read this newspaper, page by page, you'll notice the different and ingenious ways that ads catch your eye.

But attracting your attention is only part of advertising's work. Once it has stopped you, an ad must go on to inform you, interest you and convince you.

Thus advertising creates demand which, in turn, generates more production, resulting in lower cost per unit. And you reap the benefit!

Advertising, like the advertising in this newspaper, does a big job in helping to move billions of dollars worth of goods. It also helps to make our standard of living the highest of any place in the world!

Pilots' Death Car Crash 'Like End of Ski Jump'

The car in which a marine pilot received fatal injuries last August took off "like, it hit the end of a ski jump" before it was demolished at Patricia Bay and Trans-Canada Highway, a preliminary hearing was told Thursday.

Thirteen Crown witnesses began giving evidence in Saanich police court at the hearing of a criminally negligent driving charge faced by Capt. Patrick Norman Morrison, South Burnaby.

It is alleged Capt. Morrison drove the car in which Capt. William O. Boyce, 41, Vancouver, was injured, dying some 23 hours later in hospital.

With six Crown witnesses still to be heard, the hearing was adjourned to 2:30 p.m. Monday at request of prosecutor Kenneth Murphy.

Witnesses told of seeing the death car travel at high speed south on Patricia Bay Highway, go through a stop sign at Trans-Canada, and hurtle into the air to vanish in a huge cloud of dust and smoke. Dr. E. L. McNeiven, who attended at St. Joseph's Hospital shortly after the crash told the hearing both Boyce and Morrison at that time were in "extremely precarious condition," and added that Morrison was "lucky to be here today."

A third occupant of the car, Capt. John McKay, 36, also of Vancouver, received serious injuries and was taken to the Jubilee Hospital. He has since been discharged.

All men were employed as marine pilots by the B.C. Pilotage Authority and were in Victoria Aug. 21 to attend a meeting of the B.C. Coast Pilots' Association.

Richard C. Steel, 2138 Central, superintendent of customs and excise here, told the hearing he had driven into the city from Sidney and reached a stop sign at Patricia Bay and Trans-Canada at about 11:30 p.m. Aug. 21.

DID HOMEWORK

As he sat alone in his car for a minute, he recited to himself a number of customs regulations on which he expected to be examined the following day.

Suddenly a car shot past on his right side at between 50 and 80 miles an hour, according to his estimate, went through the stop sign and intersection, struck a row of tiles which divide the highway and took off into the air.

He said in mid-air "the rear end began turning to the left and the car landed on its wheels a distance of 40 yards from the tiles, which I paced.

JUMPED SIX FEET

"It landed right side up, bounced up again, turned upside-down and reached a height of six or eight feet from the ground. Apparently it then struck an object which stopped its progress and landed on its roof, bounced once more and came to rest again on its roof."

There had been no sound of braking, nor any indication of slowing or turning by the other car, Steel told the court.

He found no sound or evidence of life in the wreck and went immediately to call police for an ambulance.

Mrs. Barbara Lorraine Hitchin, Royal Oak, who was driving south on Patricia Bay Highway near Viewmont, said a car passed her very quickly without warning in a 50 zone. When she approached Ralph Street the same car was crawling, almost stopped, astride the white centre line, then when one of three occupants looked back the car "took off at terrific speed" going toward Carey.

As her car approached the railway overpass near Trans-Canada she saw the car go through the intersection, and a huge cloud of dust arose.

Charles R. Vater, 1014 McKenzie said he was driving north on Douglas approaching the intersection from the south when he saw a car go through the stop sign, hit the centre island and climb into the air. Vater said he looked back to where he was driving and when his eyes returned to the other car there was only a cloud of smoke and dust.

He estimated the other car's speed, at 50-60 about 200 feet prior to the intersection.

Ronald Hodge, 590 Baleskine, sat having a cup of tea with his wife in their kitchen overlooking the intersection.

When he first saw the car passing Saanich No. 1 fire hall he paid little notice. Then he saw it ricochet, flip into the air, strike a lamp standard which caused a "great spark and a great cloud of smoke and dust."

Hodge assisted police in removing three men from the wrecked car.

The witness said the third man was in "quite a peculiar position. His legs were crisscrossed around the steering column, his back was bent at quite an angle, his head bent almost underneath his arm and his left arm bent under his back."

The hearing was told the three men had had between two and four drinks of scotch during the afternoon previous, then went fishing from Shoal Harbor, Sidney.

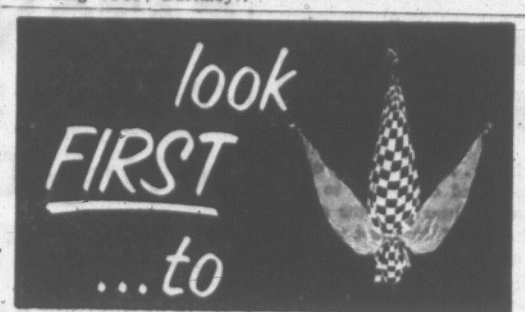

Bruce William Bourquin, 13, of Mills Road, said when he cleaned up the boat believed used by the trio he found a dozen empty beer bottles in it.

Better Usage Would Triple Timber Cut

British Columbia could triple its present allowable timber cut to 3,028,000,000 cubic feet per year if "accessibility and utilization improve," Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said in the legislature Thursday.

At present, under the sustained yield forest program which was brought in in 1945 and is not fully effective in B.C., the allowable cut is 628,000,000 cubic feet from 38,500,000 acres. The cut in sustained yield areas represented 69 per cent of the total B.C. production.

He said the present cut is in balance with rate of growth but sustained yield could be tripled as more pulp is required and as transportation facilities "such as the PGE, are pushed further into the hinterland."

The minister also pointed out that although more timber from Crown lands was sold in 1958 than in 1957—income to the province was reduced.

17 PER CENT DROP

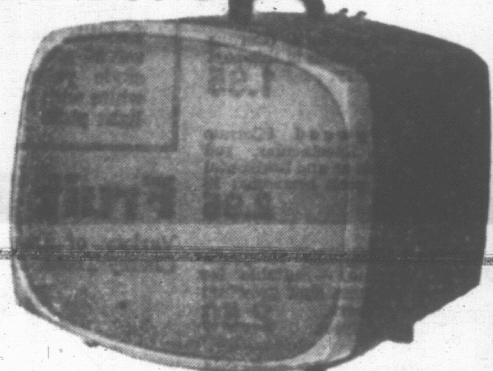

Production costs varied the average stumpage rate for all species from $1.50 per 100 cubic feet in 1957 to $2.90 in 1958—cutting provincial revenue by 17 per cent.

Formula for arriving at stumpage rates, said Mr. Williston, was selling price minus cost price, the difference being divided by two.

"When it becomes policy to maintain production by decreasing the direct return to the province, as happened in 1958, the additional administrative and development costs must be shared with the federal government, which agency benefits directly from the employment created and the income taxes paid both by the workers and the corporations," the minister added.

He was critical of federal refusal to pay 50 per cent of the above-normal fire fighting costs of 1958, which were requested for the same reason, and would have amounted to about $2,000,000.

Tug Sinks in Gale; 6 Dead

Lone Survivor Plucked From Sea By Gulf Ferry

By MONTE ROBERTS

Six towboatmen perished when the Port Angeles-based tug Henry Foss struck a rock and sank during a 70-mile-per-hour gale near Beaver Point, Salt Spring Island, about 4 a.m. today.

Only one crew member survived immersion in the icy, gale-whipped waters.

The tug went down so quickly she could not even get a wireless message away.

The victims died after losing precarious grips on a capsized lifeboat.

Beaver Point is about half-way between Fulford Harbor and Ganges Harbor.

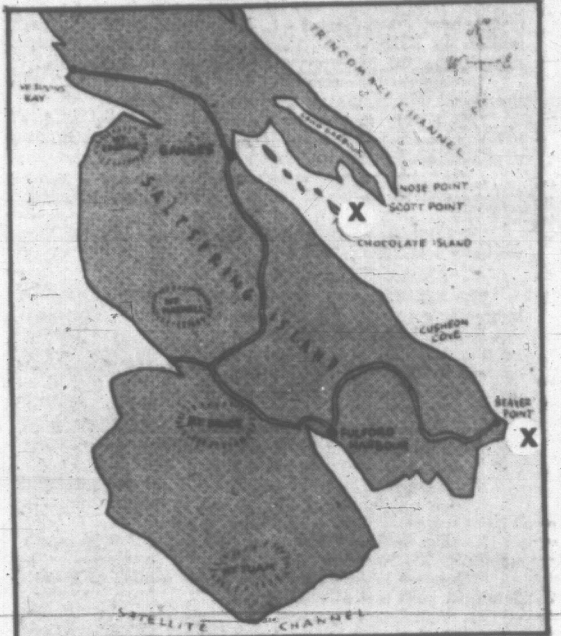

Lone survivor is the chief engineer, Edward Hanson, 313 East Twelfth, Port Angeles, recovering from severe shock and exposure in Ganges Medical Centre.

He was picked up by the ferry Cy Peck, after more than four hours clinging to the upturned lifeboat.

Dead are:

Capt. Warren Waterman, 47, master; Lawrence Berg, 56, mate; Martin Gullsteing, 51, assistant engineer; Oswald H. Sorenson, 47, deckhand; Richard T. Lothian, deckhand, and Erick W. Danielson, 60, cook, all of Port Angeles.

Lothian was fished from the water at the same time as Hanson, but was dead on arrival at the Ganges hospital.

VICTIM OF STORM-TOSSED STRAIT

Towboat Henry Foss which sank early today after striking rock in entrance to Ganges Harbor was former John Cudahy, used by U.S. Army engineers in Alaskan waters during the Second World War.

She was employed regularly by her owners towing logs out of Ladysmith to Washington State ports. She was 90 feet long and owned by the Foss Launch and Tug Co., Tacoma, Seattle and Port Angeles.

Ottawa 'Baffled' On Ferry—Bonner

OTTAWA (CP)—Attorney General Bonner of British Columbia said today the federal government is not indifferent to the problems which will be created by the CPR's plan to cancel its Vancouver-Victoria ferry service Feb. 25.

He said in an interview after a meeting with Prime Minister Diefenbaker that "how far the federal government's interest can be translated into a solution still is a subject of conversation."

not indifferent but is baffled at the moment on how to approach the problem," Mr. Bonner said.

One of Mr. Bonner's arguments is that the CPR should regard its Vancouver-Victoria and Vancouver-Nanaimo ferry services as a single service. Any losses on the Vancouver-Victoria service in winter were offset by profits made on the Vancouver-Nanaimo run, he said here.

The attorney-general came to Ottawa armed with the B.C. legislature's unanimous resolution asking the federal government to assure continuation of year-round service between the mainland and Vancouver Island.

Mr. Bonner said Mr. Diefenbaker told him that while the government "understands the perplexity of the problem" it has no legal or constitutional responsibility for the service. The service did not come under the jurisdiction of the board of transport commissioners.

"In brief, the CPR is answerable to no one," Mr. Bonner said.

During his meeting with Mr. Diefenbaker he proposed the possibility of Canadian National Steamships taking over the Vancouver-Victoria run.

"The capital city of British Columbia deserves direct connection with the mainland," he said. "When a company has been supplying an essential public utility service for so many years it is unreasonable that it should be interrupted on such short notice, economics notwithstanding."

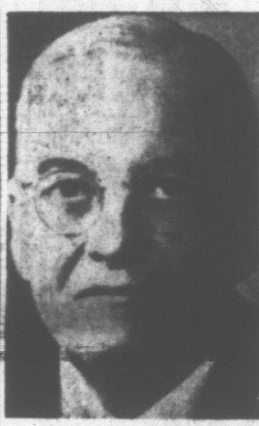

Mr. Bonner met for about 15 minutes with Mr. Diefenbaker and plans meetings today and Saturday with the three B.C. cabinet ministers, Premier Pearson, Minister Green and Justice Minister Fulton.

He also plans to meet here Saturday with CPR President N. R. Crump. He will leave Ottawa for Victoria by air Sunday.

RAISED IN HOUSE

Later, the subject was raised in the Commons for the second consecutive day with Mr. Diefenbaker reiterating the federal government's stand that it has no jurisdiction.

However, he told Opposition Leader Pearson that the whole question is being reviewed. Mr. Pearson had asked whether Mr. Diefenbaker would arrange a meeting of federal, provincial and municipal officials in an effort to prevent the stoppage of service and also whether a committee of federal and provincial experts would study the whole question of transportation between the island and the mainland.

SURGERY SUCCESS

Successful hernia operation was performed today on U.S. State Secretary Dulles. But doctors delayed report on whether they found recurrence of cancer from 1956 operation. White House meanwhile denied Dulles would resign.

Lifeboat Quickly Capsized by Wind

When the tug struck, in inky darkness, the crew managed to get their lifeboat into the water, but the tremendous seas and winds capsized it almost at once.

The men strove to hang on, but as the cold ate into them, their hands became numb and helpless.

The seas plucked them from the lifeboat, one by one, until only Hanson remained.

Lothian was found floating about 100 yards from the lifeboat. He was alive, but died before reaching hospital.

The Cy Peck was on the way out of Ganges Harbor shortly after 8 a.m. today when a lookout spotted the overturned lifeboat.

The boat was a few hundred yards from Chocolate Island, near the harbor mouth. Chocolate Island is eight miles from the scene of the sinking.

The lookout put his binoculars on the boat, and saw an arm wave.

Search and Rescue was notified, and the RCAF sent a Canoe aircraft to search the area. The Cy Peck, after taking Hanson and Lothian to shore, also continued the search.

She was joined by another tug, the Ivor Foss, the RCMP patrol boat from Ganges, and several smaller craft.

Another body was found by 10 a.m., and the rest by 11:30 a.m.

Inspired 'Tugboat Annie' Stories

The Henry Foss was owned by Foss Launch & Tug Co., with head offices in Tacoma and offices in Seattle and Port Angeles.

The company, one of the largest on the Pacific Coast, formed the inspiration for many of the Norman Reilly Raine "Tugboat Annie" stories.

The Henry Foss in recent months had been employed towing logs from Ladysmith to points in the U.S.-Pacific Northwest.

A 90-footer, she was originally used by U.S. Army engineers in Alaska waters during the Second World War.

Two officials of Foss Launch and Tug were to arrive at Patricia Bay Airport from Tacoma this afternoon, and proceeded directly to Salt Spring Island.

They are Drew Foss, brother of the company's president, and Orville Sund.

The sunken tug was named after the president.

GIANT SLIDE ON ITS WAY?

HERBRIGGEN, Switzerland (UPI)—Tension heightened around this avalanche-threatened village today because tonsized chunks of the mountain slide were giving way at the wrong time.

An unexpected fall of rocks, frozen earth and snow occurred this morning during the coldest, usually safest, hours.

Experts feared the long afternoon periods of relatively warm sun would melt the snow and trigger a massive slide that could wipe out this alpine village with a hammer blow.

8 Years for Rape

VANCOUVER (CP)—A disbarred Vancouver lawyer was sentenced today to eight years in penitentiary for rape. John Jonas Justin, 36, was found guilty of raping a 29-year-old Danish immigrant woman who went to his office Nov. 1 for an interview about a job as stenographer.

CUBA VS. OTTAWA

Where Are The Mounties?

HAVANA—Cuba says the Mounties have arrived, but the Mounties in Ottawa say they haven't. Cuban Defence Minister Augusto Martinez says six RCMP have arrived to reorganize his country's rural police force into a highly-mobile 2,000-man force using jeeps, helicopters and horses.

But in Ottawa today RCMP liaison officer Insp. M. J. Keough was reported as saying, "I don't know anything about that."

He denied that the force had loaned Cuba the six officers.

B.C. Coast Probed In Big Oil Rush

OTTAWA (CP)—Steadily mounting applications for oil and gas exploration rights in Canada's Arctic archipelago totalled 60,000,000 acres at mid-afternoon today, the northern affairs department reported.

The figure may reach 100,000,000 acres by Monday, one source suggested, as North American oil companies unleash a barrage of applications.

Earlier today, Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton said that 10 companies had applied by 11 a.m. for permits to explore for oil and gas, including some on the west coast.

Richfield Corporation applied for an exploration permit on lands underlying the waters in the vicinity of Graham Island (one of the Queen Charlottes) off the coast of British Columbia and Canadian Homestead Oil Limited for one under the Fraser River delta. There are about 500,000 acres in the two areas applied for.

Mr. Hamilton said in the Commons that the applications had all been made within the last month, but that the permits have not been granted pending a review of government regulations applicable to the granting of gas and oil leases.

While permits for the Arctic area are not being granted immediately, the applications are being kept on file on a first-come first-served basis, Mr. Hamilton told the Commons.

He did not identify the 10 companies, saying he will do so in a later announcement.

Meanwhile, the Geological Survey of Canada was preparing a report on the possible Queen Elizabeth Islands. The report was expected to be ready by March 1.

However, geologists on the spot have made no bones about their belief that substantial deposits of gas and oil lie under the islands and along the continental shelf under the Arctic waters lying off the islands.

Search Continues

HALIFAX (CP)—Canadian and U.S. planes resumed the search today for the missing Iceland trawler Juli, which disappeared northeast of Newfoundland six days ago with 31 men aboard.

New Floods Poised, Ice-Blasting Studied

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP)—Residents of West Terre Haute braced themselves for the swirling Wabash River floodwaters today, while state officials pondered the feasibility of dynamiting a huge ice jam upstream.

The major flood peril seemed to be over on the upper Wabash above Delphi, where some 1,500 families were forced to flee from their homes, but officials feared new rains predicted for today might add to the swollen rivers.

An army of National Guardsmen joined a sandbagging crew at West Terre Haute, which is expected to be the next major target of the flood.

Guess th' Mounties hev gone t' Cuba 'cause they always git t' their mannyana.

But if we connected up with th' St. Lawrence Seaway we'd git boats here.

SURVIVOR TELLS STORY

'Slipped Off One at a Time'

Only known survivor of the Henry Foss sinking, chief engineer Edward Hanson, said in hospital at Ganges today the accident happened so quickly there was not even time to send a wireless call for aid.

Recovering from severe shock and exposure from hours in icy waters near the entrance to Ganges Harbor, Mr. Hanson said the tug hit a rock about 4 a.m.

"ALL FILLED IN" "It was completely black at the time," he said.

"We managed to get a lifeboat away, and all of us piled into it."

"The lifeboat capsized."

He said the men tried to cling to the lifeboat, but slipped off, one at a time, and floated away.

Mr. Hanson said there was a 70-mile wind blowing and the lifeboat was pitching violently.

"Lothian almost made it," he told hospital attendants.

"Lothian hung on to the lifeboat until almost the end," Mr. Hanson said. "I couldn't reach him when he slipped away."

"COULDN'T REACH" (Richard T. Lothian, deckhand, was found floating in his lifeboat about 100 yards behind the overturned boat. He was picked up by the Cy Peck but pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.)

"Lothian hung on to the lifeboat until almost the end," Mr. Hanson said. "I couldn't reach him when he slipped away."

4 OUT OF 5 LOST IN 1949

Similar Tragedy Off Trial Island

Today's loss of the tugboat Henry Foss recalls a similar tragedy which occurred on Nov. 26, 1949.

The George McGregor, a towboat owned by Victoria Tug Co. Ltd., capsized in a gale between Fiddle Reef and Trial Island, just off the Victoria waterfront.

There was only one survivor, 17-year-old Gerry Anderson. He was blown ashore, clinging to bits of wreckage, at 10-Mile Point.

Four other crew members lost their lives. The 101-ton, 74-foot George McGregor is believed to lie in about 30 fathoms of water, east of Trial Island.

Several tentative attempts at salvage have failed.

New B.C. Policy Rules Out 131 Tree Farm Applicants

By PETE LOUDON
Times Legislative Reporter

A new policy for awarding tree-farm licences announced by Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston Thursday will rule out 131 applications now before the government and opens the door only to the giants of the timber industry.

The government will propose, the minister told the legislature, that tree-farm licences in developed areas only be given to applicants who already own 25 per cent of the timber in the proposed licence area.

The applicant will have to prove the timber will be processed in utilization plants already constructed or planned. "Developed areas" is taken to mean areas within the Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island.

The new policy would leave small operators the right to cut on private lands or in areas set aside as "public working circles".

Because of the immensity of the operation involved in acceptance of a tree-farm licence under the new scheme, it is expected only the larger firms—MacMillan & Bloedel, Crown Zellerbach, B.C. Forest Products, Powell River Company, Alaska Pine and Canadian Forest Products, could apply.

"Every encouragement will be given to those who achieve complete utilization of the tree, and by so doing, create a broader, more stabilized job base," the minister said.

72-MPH Gusts Rip Power Lines

Log Boom Breaks Up

Gale-force winds that reached 72 miles per hour in gusts caused two widespread power failures early this morning, broke up a log boom at Cadboro Bay, and caused suspicious cracks in a downtown building.

Weatherman William Mackie said the southeast wind began picking up speed at midnight, and by 4 a.m. it was holding average speed of 40 to 45 miles per hour, with many gusts up to 60 miles, and about two each hour that touched 70 miles per hour.

There was one gust of 71 miles per hour shortly after 4, and the 72-mile blast occurred at 9 a.m. Speed was still holding the high average at press time.

POWER OUT

B.C. Electric officials said power in the Burnside area went off at 2 a.m. for two hours, and that at 4 a.m. Victoria West and Esquimalt were darkened, and were without power for from one and one-half to two hours.

Trees falling across power lines were blamed for outages at Esquimalt Lagoon and Cherry Point, near Cobble Hill, and flying branches disrupted power to individual homes.

Line crews were on duty all night, the company spokesman said, and were able to restore service to most areas before customers knew there had been a power failure.

Electric clocks which were up to two hours slow this morning were the only signs to most people that power had been cut.

One other widespread outage occurred near Oak Bay Junction, where street lights and electric signs were out for a few minutes.

300 LOOSE LOGS

A boom broke up in Cadboro Bay, and close to 300 logs were strewn along the beach immediately below Hibbens Close. Another two booms moored in the vicinity escaped damage from the wind and waves.

Other waterfront damage was negligible as small craft stayed in shelter during the blow.

B.C. Telephone Co. reported one pole down and only a few isolated cases of loss of service.

USED TO IT

Trees in this area stand up well to the southeast winter wind because it is the prevailing wind, and the trees have developed root systems to withstand it, one works foreman said.

"It would be different if we had a westerly that strong," he said. "There would be trees down all over the place."

Mr. Mackie said the storm which caused the gale was centred today offshore from southern Washington, and was moving southward.

As it progresses winds will decrease behind it, he said, and should be down to 20 miles per hour from the east by Saturday. There may be showers tonight, and although skies will be cloudy Saturday, there is little sign of rain. Temperatures will range between 38 and 43 degrees tonight and Saturday.

NO OPTION

Those who enter college in Russia lack the option of taking such difficult western courses as Advanced Doodling or How to Read a TV Schedule.

As Dr. Hibbard says: "The Russian leaders make all the decisions. They are bent on beating the west economically and scientifically. To achieve this, they build up certain industries, such as steel, at the expense of other industries."

"This means that at the time students are entering college, the government may want an entire group to take courses leading to proficiency in steel operations. Or they might push another batch of students into nuclear physics."

"Once enrolled, students are given an incentive to lead their class. The top students get the best and highest paying jobs in Moscow and other large cities."

"The remainder are shuffled off to Buffalo or Sverdlovsk or some other outpost where conditions are apt to turn comrades' stomachs."

Here is how Mr. K. operates: Students begin seven years of university education when they are seven. Upon completion they are analyzed to find out if there are any "squares." The top brains go to high school and on to college for five years. Their tuition is paid and they are paid — to study.

Russian students whose low ballast of intelligence does not entitle them to a college education are sent to three-year technical institutes. The remainder (strictly sub-standard material) are sent to vocational schools for a short term.

Authority for this is Dr. W. R. Hibbard, manager of the alloy studies section of the General Electric research laboratory in Schenectady, N.Y. Dr. Hibbard's observations are based on a three-weeks tour of Russia made with eight other leading metallurgists, scientists and educators.

In Victoria today, Dr. Hibbard revealed Nikita Khrushchev's scheme to build better students and scientists to build better Sputniks and other commodities to blow places apart.

RAIN DROP REALLY HIT RIGHT SPOT

The legislative labor committee today found a winter work project close at hand when members met in the cedar room of the legislative building.

Herbert Brusch (S.C., Esquimalt) noticed drops of water falling around him—the ceiling was leaking.

Work was ordered to begin immediately.

'Do It Now' Gets Jobs For 651

Some 651 men are working today because of the annual "Do It Now" campaign, the Greater-Victoria winter employment committee reported today.

It added that the campaign also has prompted scheduling of projects that will employ another 200-250 men soon.

The work was created by business and government projects intended to ease seasonal unemployment.

Although no methods of determining how much additional work has been created by householders who are co-operating with the campaign, the committee said reports from the building industry "indicates the volume of such additional work is quite high."

But the committee warned that the 651 men known to be working as a result of the campaign, represents only a fraction of the 350 men who still need jobs.

"The co-operation of all citizens is needed to continue the campaign until the quantity of work available in winter and summer is levelled off to full year-round employment," the committee said.

CRACKS SHOW IN BUILDING; TRAFFIC TIE-UP

Traffic was blocked on Johnson Street today between Blanshard and Douglas when cracks were noticed in the north wall of the two-storey Odd Fellows' Hall at the Douglas-Johnson intersection.

Street excavations were blamed for the cracks, made noticeable because of a recently applied coat of stucco on the building.

Barricades were erected by the city engineer's department and city police, and a start was made on shoring up walls.

'VINCENT THE BUG' SHOT DOWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vincent (The Bug) McGowan, a berserk ex-convict who critically wounded his estranged wife, was shot and wounded today when he tried to escape police who had been searching for him for 18 hours.

Detectives seized the 27-year-old gunman at he left an upper East Side apartment, but he punched one of the detectives and bolted. He was brought down with a shot in the back and taken to Metropolitan Hospital.

A city-wide hunt for McGowan began Thursday when he shot his telephone operator wife, Christine, 25, in the abdomen with a pistol when she refused his plea for reconciliation.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

Old Firehall New Site For Market?

City fire wardens committee Thursday was asked by city council to investigate the possibilities of relocating the public market in the old firehall on Yates near Camosun when the present firehall is vacated.

Ald. A. I. Curtis, fire wardens' chairman, said the public market's future was being studied intensively "and some recommendation will be coming forward."

It is known that the possibility of erecting a row of stalls on the present site, when the building is torn down for a parking lot, is under consideration.

Jack Shrimpton, M22-Chapman, was congratulated by city council on his appointment as director of the Victoria Girls' Drill Corps.

Mr. Shrimpton, the corps' drum major for the past 15 years, succeeds the late Capt. Norman Foster who founded the organization.

The Optimist Club's request for permission to sell Easter baskets door-to-door was turned down but council was told that the club still could conduct the sale if it paid a $60 pedlar's trade licence for every person selling the baskets.

Aldermen decided to notify Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith that they would be pleased if he introduces a bill in the Legislature seeking tax-exemptions on improvements to older houses.

Mr. Smith sought council's opinion on the proposal.

Ald. A. I. Curtis said the city could not make representations on its own and suggested that it be left in the hands of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities.

But Ald. D. J. Proudfoot said Mr. Smith should be asked to introduce a bill for first reading to obtain the views of other MLAs in the normal manner.

Argyle Sees Space Man In Two Years

The United States within two years might have the required know-how to enable it to send a manned satellite into space, according to P. E. Argyle, technical officer at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Saanich.

Speaking at a meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, Victoria Centre, Thursday, Mr. Argyle said the problem of how to bring the satellite back to earth would have to be solved first before man could be sent into space.

Strong evidence indicated, he said, that the United States would solve this problem in two years.

Store Employees, Builders Flee When Wall Collapses in Oak Bay

Business came to a standstill and three people narrowly escaped injury Thursday when the end wall of a building in the Oak Bay business section collapsed.

The lower portion of the east wall of a block incorporating the Oak Bay Theatre, Club Tango, Maison Dudley, and Oak Bay Produce split and fell away from the building.

Worst hit were the operators of Oak Bay Produce, Mr. and Mrs. Gee Gain, and daughter Sue, 717 Queens.

'CRACK, RUMBLE'
Mrs. Gain and her daughter were in the store when they heard "a terrific crack and rumble" and fled into the street only seconds before the wall fell out and the floor buckled, sending thousands of pounds of produce skidding from the shelves.

Owner of Maison Dudley, G. Dudley Stephens, 1455 St. Patrick, also escaped to the street before the shifting foundations jammed his door shut.

Workmen on a site nearby underneath the tottering wall tied as the heavy concrete began to buckle.

Miss Gain and her mother were in the store when they heard the first crack and Mrs. Gain said: "Come on, Sue, let's get out of here."

"Only a few minutes later," Miss Gain said, "the lower wall which is the foundation collapsed."

Greatest danger lay in the possibility of escaping gas from damaged pipes exploding in the ruins, but B.C. Electric gas division officials were quickly on hand to cut off the supply.

BASE WEAKENED
The accident is thought to have been caused by weakening of the foundation base under the concrete walls.

An excavation had been made on adjoining property by A. K. Smalley Construction in preparation for the construction of a new store block.

A buttressed wooden fence, erected by the company some eight feet from the building, prevented the sagging wall from falling completely and possibly carrying away most of the east end of the building.

Building inspector Kenneth Cunningham said other stores in the block were not affected by the slide.

DANCES CUT
Owner of the Club Tango, Ed Hicks, said the building inspector told him he won't be able to hold public dances and parties in his upper floor rooms until repairs are made.

"I imagine everything will have to be cancelled for two weeks," he said.

The annual Order of De Molay, Victoria Chapter, Valentine dance scheduled for today is "definitely cancelled."

City Hall Hire Industrial Commissioner

City Council may set up an industrial commission this year if its present mood prevails.

Aldermen were unanimous Thursday in directing finance committee to study feasibility of hiring an industrial commissioner and report back at budget time.

Suggestion was made by Ald. Hugh Ramsay who said an industrial commissioner could analyze the industrial potential here and then act as the city's envoy in trying to "entice" industry to the city.

He said "it should be clear that we are interested only in secondary industry, not the big primary ones that could spoil the city."

Earlier, Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood said he had received inquiries from four firms interested in locating here. Council voted to send appropriate information to the companies outlining advantages Victoria has to offer.

'THERE IS HATE IN NEWFOUNDLAND'

IWA Must Go—Premier

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood has accused the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) of causing trouble in Newfoundland and asked loggers to throw the union out of the province.

In a special radio and television speech Thursday night, he told the province's 20,000 full and part-time pulpwood loggers, 1,200 of whom have been on strike since Dec. 31, to form a new union.

"There is hate in Newfoundland tonight, bitter and ugly," the premier said. "There is more lawlessness, more violence, more lies, more falsehood, more cheating, more deceit in the past four weeks than we ever saw in Newfoundland before."

H. Landon Ladd, district president of the IWA, termed the speech "hysterical and inflammatory."

SUPPORTS COMPANY

Besides attacking the union, Mr. Smallwood said he was throwing the full weight of the provincial government on the side of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company, hit by loggers' strike in the central Newfoundland town of Grand Falls.

There has been considerable unrest at the town. A special RCMP squad of about 60 men is said to have been moved there.

Mr. Smallwood said the "IWA never will and never can win in Newfoundland." He said the government doesn't want the IWA and will never work with its officials, talk to them, never answer a telegram from them, never have anything to do with them.

"There is not enough room in Newfoundland for the government and the IWA at the same time. One or the other must go. It is not a strike they have started—it is a civil war."

Mr. Ladd called on striking loggers and pickets to "maintain order at all costs" while heavily-reinforced RCMP patrols walked the streets of Grand Falls.

Albert Martin, general manager of Bowaters Pulp & Paper Company at Corner Brook, said: "I think he (Mr. Smallwood) is a very courageous man. I will be glad to support the premier in his stand. I will do anything in my power to bring peace and prosperity to the loggers of Newfoundland."

IWA loggers seek an hourly increase of five cents over a two-year period and a six-hour reduction in the 60-hour work week without loss of take-home pay. That would give them $1.22 an hour instead of the present $1.05.

Government Seeks Sloan Successor

The B.C. government is searching for a forestry adviser to succeed the late Gordon Sloan, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston announced Thursday.

Meanwhile, Mr. Williston will hold public hearings on tree farm licence applications which have been pending, and will seek appointment of a judge to settle the appealed application of Empire Mills of Squamish. Mr. Sloan was involved in this matter at the time of his death.

The same judge will be asked to review evidence in the general matter of tree farm licences bidding on crown timber in public working circles.

NEVER WRITTEN

Mr. Sloan had conducted an enquiry but had not written his report at the time of his passing.

In his 1956 report, Mr. Sloan recommended Powell River Company, Canadian Forest Products Ltd. and Crown Zellerbach be given special consideration in completing their tree licence plans, said Mr. Williston.

"In this regard, the first two companies have advertised notice of their intention to apply. Mr. Sloan had planned to hold a series of public hearings relative to each proposal." It is these hearings which the minister will hold.

"The government plans to continue a search for a successor for the Honorable Mr. Sloan. The task will not be easy and it is not expected a decision will be reached immediately.

"If an appreciable delay occurs, I propose to hold the public hearings referred to above, so that these applications, so long deferred, may be given consideration," said Mr. Williston.

BONNER SAYS

Ottawa 'Baffled'
On Ferry Crisis

OTTAWA (CP)—Attorney-General Bonner of British Columbia said today the federal government is not indifferent to the problems which will be created by the CPR's plan to cancel its Vancouver-Victoria ferry service Feb. 25.

He said in an interview after a meeting with Prime Minister Diefenbaker that "how far the federal government's interest can be translated into a solution still is a subject of conversation."

"The federal government is not indifferent but is baffled at the moment on how to approach the problem," Mr. Bonner said.

The attorney-general came to Ottawa armed with the B.C. legislature's unanimous resolution asking the federal government to assure continuation of year-round service between the mainland and Vancouver Island.

Mr. Bonner said Mr. Diefenbaker told him that while the government "understands the perplexity of the problem" it has no legal or constitutional responsibility for the service. The service did not come under the jurisdiction of the board of transport commissioners.

"In brief, the CPR is answerable to no one," Mr. Bonner said.

During his meeting with Mr. Diefenbaker he proposed the possibility of Canadian National Steamships taking over the Vancouver-Victoria run.

"The capital city of British Columbia is not indifferent to the problem," Mr. Bonner said.

B.C. Coast Probed
In Big Oil Rush

OTTAWA (CP)—Steadily mounting applications for oil and gas exploration rights in Canada's Arctic archipelago totalled 60,000,000 acres at mid-afternoon today, the northern affairs department—reported.

The figure may reach 100,000,000 acres by Monday, one source suggested, as North American oil companies unleash a barrage of applications.

Earlier today, Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton said that 10 companies had applied by 11 a.m. for permits covering 50,000,000 acres, including some on the west coast.

Richfield Corporation applied for an exploration permit on lands underlying the waters in the vicinity of Graham Island (one of the Queen Charlottes) off the coast of British Columbia and Canadian Homestead Oils Limited for one under the Fraser River delta. There are about 500,000 acres in the two areas applied for.

Mr. Hamilton said in the Commons that the applications have all been made with

CALGARY (CP)—Ronald Keith, assistant to the president of Canadian Pacific Air Lines, indicated Thursday CPA may operate more than 100 aircraft in the Pacific Northwest flight it has been granted by the Air Transport Board.

He said there was no mention of overloads or extra sections to the flight when the board brought down its ruling Jan. 21. The company has been allowed one return trans-Canada flight a day with stops at Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal.

It was normal for an airline to run extra sections when bookings justified it, he said in an interview, and CPA intended to operate the flight "in the normal way."

While permits for the Arctic area are not being granted immediately, the applications are being kept on file on a first-come first-served basis, Mr. Hamilton told the Commons.

COMPANIES NOT NAMED

He did not identify the 10 companies, saying he will do so in a later announcement.

Meanwhile, the Geological Survey of Canada was preparing a report on the possible gas and oil reserves in the Queen Elizabeth Islands. The report was expected to be ready by March 1.

However, geologists on the spot have made no bones about their belief that substantial deposits of gas and oil lie under the islands and along the continental shelf under the Arctic waters lying off the islands.

Rescued After
4 Hours in Sea

Only known survivor of the sinking of the tug Henry Foss today, chief engineer Edward Hanson, said in hospital at Ganges the accident happened so quickly there was not even time to send a wireless call for aid.

Recovering from severe shock and exposure near hours in icy waters near the entrance to Ganges Harbor, Mr. Hanson said the tug hit a rock about 4 a.m.

'ALL PILED IN'

"It was completely black at the time," he said. "We managed to get a lifeboat away, and all of us piled into it."

"The lifeboat capsized." He said the men tried clinging to the lifeboat, but slipped off, one at a time, and floated away.

Mr. Hanson said there was a

70-mile wind blowing and the lifeboat was pitching violently.

"Lothian almost made it," he told hospital attendants.

'COULDN'T REACH'

(Richard T. Lothian, deckhand, was found floating in his lifeboat about 100 yards behind the overturned boat. He was picked up by the Cy Peck but pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.)

"Lothian hung on to the lifeboat until almost the end," Mr. Hanson said. "I couldn't reach him when he slipped away."

6 Dead as Tug
Sinks in Gale

By MONTE ROBERTS

Six towboatmen perished when the Port Angeles-based tug Henry Foss struck a rock and sank during a 70-mile-per-hour gale near Beaver Point, Salt Spring Island, about 4 a.m. today.

Only one crew member survived immersion in the icy, gale-whipped waters.

The tug went down so quickly she could not even get a wireless message away.

The victims died after losing precarious grips on a capsized lifeboat.

Beaver Point is about halfway between Fulford Harbor and Ganges Harbor.

Lone survivor is the chief engineer, Edward Hanson, 313 East Twelfth, Port Angeles, recovering from severe shock and exposure in Ganges Medical Centre.

He was picked up from the ferry Cy Peck, after more than four hours clinging to the overturned lifeboat.

Dead are:
Capt. Warren Waterman, 47, master; Lawrence Berg, 56, mate; Martin Gullstein, 51, assistant engineer; Oswald H. Sorenson, 47, deckhand; Richard T. Lothian, deckhand, and Erick W. Danielson, 60, cook, all of Port Angeles.

Lothian was fished from the water at the same time as Hanson, but was dead on arrival at the Ganges hospital.

Lifeboat Quickly Capsized by Wind

When the tug struck, in inky darkness, the crew managed to get their lifeboat "into" the water, but the tremendous seas and winds capsized it almost at once.

The men strove to hang on, but as the cold ate into them, their hands became numb and helpless.

The seas plucked them from the lifeboat, one by one, until only Hanson remained.

Lothian was found floating about 100 yards from the lifeboat. He was alive, but died before reaching hospital.

The Cy Peck was on the way after 8 a.m. today when a lookout spotted the overturned lifeboat.

The boat was a few hundred yards from Chocolate Island, near the harbor mouth. Chocolate Island is eight miles from the scene of the sinking.

The lookout put his binoculars on the boat, and saw an arm wave.

Search and Rescue was notified, and the RCAF sent a Canso aircraft to search the area. The Cy Peck, after taking Hanson and Lothian to shore, also continued the search.

She was joined by another tug, the Ivor Foss, the RCMP patrol boat from Ganges, and several smaller craft.

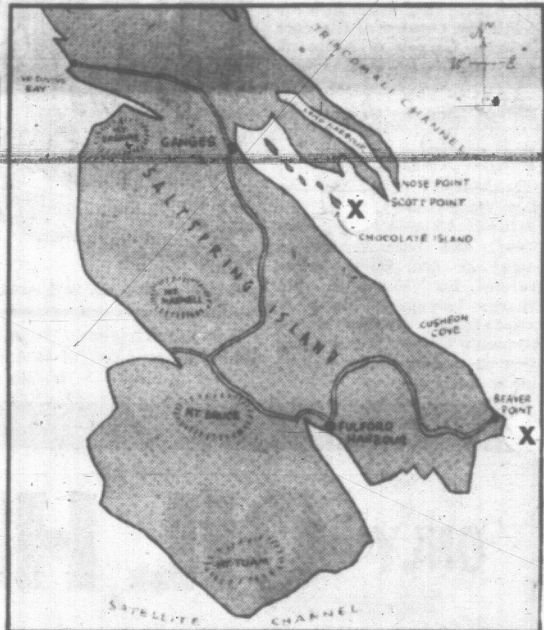

Another body was found by

All were found in the water.

The Henry Foss was owned

Similar Tragedy
Off Trial Island

Today's loss of the tugboat Henry Foss recalls a similar tragedy which occurred on Nov. 26, 1949.

The George McGregor, a towboat owned by Victoria Tug Co. Ltd., capsized in a heavy fog off Trial Island, just off the Victoria waterfront.

There was only one survivor, 17-year-old Gerry Anderson. He was blown ashore, clinging to bits of wreckage, at 10-mile point.

Four other crew members lost their lives.

The 101-ton, 74-foot George McGregor was carrying about 30 fathoms of water, east of Trial Island.

Several tentative attempts at salvage have failed.

New B.C. Policy Rules Out
131 Tree Farm Applicants

By PETE LOUDON
Times Legislative Reporter

A new policy for awarding tree-farm licences announced by Lands and Forests Minister Ray Wilfong Thursday will rule out 131 applications now before the government and opens the door only to the giants of the timber industry.

The government will propose the minister told the legislature, that tree-farm licences in developed areas only be given to applicants who already own 25 per cent of the timber in the proposed licence area.

The applicant will have to prove the timber will be processed in utilization plants already constructed or planned.

"Developed areas" is taken to mean areas within the Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island.

The new policy would leave small operators the right to cut on private lands or in areas set aside as "public working circles."

Because of the immensity of the operation involved in acceptance of a tree-farm licence under the new scheme, it is expected only the larger firms—MacMillan & Bloedel, Crown Zellerbach, B.C. Forest Products, Powell River Company, Alaska Pine and Canadian Forest Products, could apply.

"Every encouragement will be given to those who achieve complete utilization of the tree, and by so doing, create a broader, more stabilized job-base," the minister said.

This was taken to mean a

TUG 'THERE IS HATE IN NEWFOUNDLAND'

IWA Must Go—Premier

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood has accused the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) of causing trouble in Newfoundland and asked loggers to throw the union out of the province.

In a special radio and television speech Thursday night, he told the province's 20,000 full and part-time pulpwood loggers, 1,200 of whom have been on strike since Dec. 31, to form a new union.

"There is hate in Newfoundland tonight, bitter and ugly," the premier said. "There is more lawlessness, more violence, more lies, more falsehood, more cheating, more deceit in the past four weeks than we ever saw in Newfoundland before."

H. Landon Ladd, district president of the IWA, termed the speech "hysterical and inflammatory."

SUPPORTS COMPANY

Besides attacking the union, Mr. Smallwood said he was throwing the full weight of the provincial government on the side of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company, hit by loggers' strike in the central Newfoundland town of Grand Falls.

There has been considerable unrest at the town. A special RCMP squad of about 60 men is said to have been moved there.

Mr. Smallwood said the "IWA never will and never can win in Newfoundland." He said the government doesn't want the IWA and will never work with its officials, talk to them, never answer a telegram from them, never have anything to do with them.

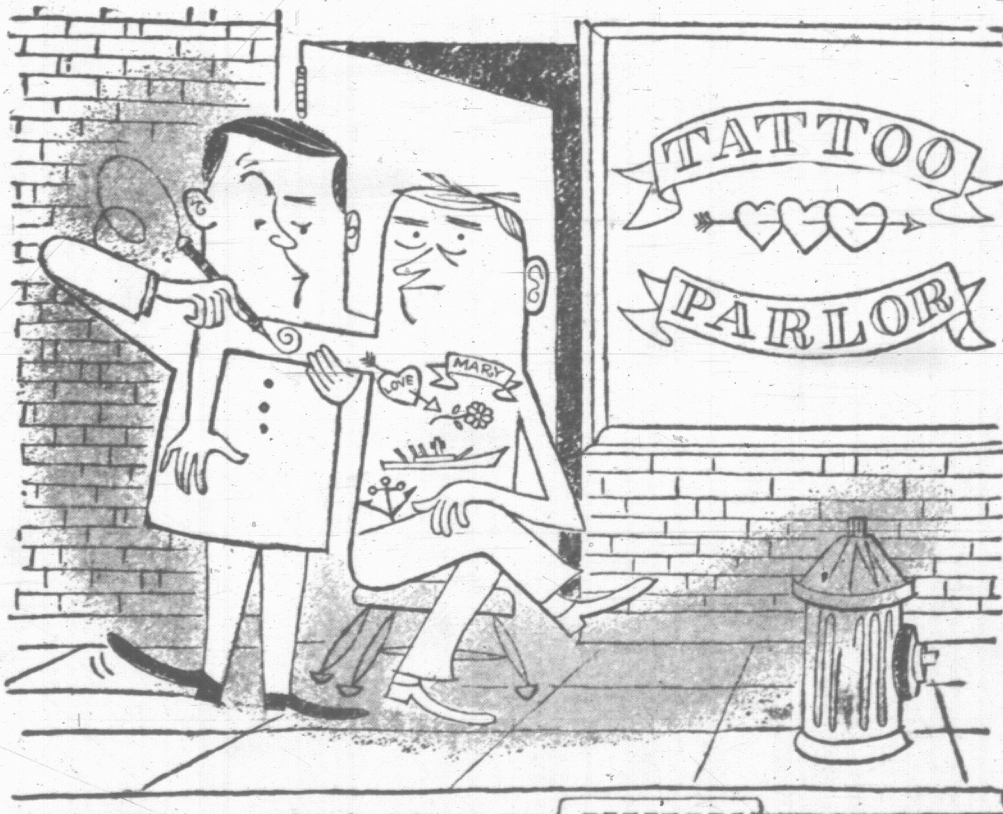

"There is not enough room in Newfoundland for the government and the IWA at the same time. One or the other must go. It is not a strike they have started—it is a civil war."

NANAIMO (CP) — A $6,000 out-of-court settlement has been reached between Cyril Malcolm Pearce and Sar Singh, both of Port Alberni. Pearce began a suit for personal and property damages suffered in a car accident Jan. 31, 1957. The settlement was reached here Wednesday.

CUBA VS. OTTAWA

Where Are the Mounties?

HAVANA—Cuba says the Mounties have arrived, but the Mounties in Ottawa say they haven't. Cuban Defence Minister Augusto Martinez says six RCMP have arrived to reorganize his country's rural police force into a highly-mobile 2,000-man force using jeeps, helicopters and horses.

But in Ottawa today RCMP liaison officer Insp. M. J. Keough was reported as saying, "I don't know anything about that."

He denied that the force had loaned Cuba the six officers.

ANOTHER 'WINSLOW BOY'

Police Brutality Inquiry Expected

LONDON (Reuters) — The government will order an inquiry into the case of a Scottish delivery boy who has made accusations of police brutality, informed sources predicted tonight.

About 150 members of Parliament, representing all parties, have signed a motion asking for a select committee to find out what happened to the grocer's helper on a December night in 1957 in the Scottish town of Thurso.

The centre of the controversy — which is being compared to the "Winslow Boy" case of 50 years ago — is John Waters, now 16, the son of an unemployed truck driver.

The boy said that on that night he was lounging with friends in a restaurant when two policemen entered. In a brief exchange, the boy evidently passed a remark about them.

He claimed the policemen led him away from the restaurant, pushed him into a dark alley and beat him.

When his parents heard the boy's story, they complained and were told subsequently that justice authorities had decided against prosecuting the policemen.

W. R. Milligan, Scotland's lord advocate, is scheduled to make a statement on the case Monday in the House of Commons. The boy and his parents have come to London, accompanied by Sir David Robertson, independent Scottish member of Parliament.

Robertson said today if the lord advocate doesn't announce an official inquiry a civil action is likely.

New Floods Poised, Ice-Blasting Studied

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Residents of West Terre Haute braced themselves for the swirling Wabash River floodwaters today, while state officials pondered the feasibility of dynamiting a huge ice jam upstream.

The major flood peril seemed to be over on the upper Wabash above Delphi, where some 1,500 families were forced to flee from their homes, but officials feared new rains predicted for today might add to the swollen rivers.

An army of National Guardsmen joined a sandbagging crew at West Terre Haute, which is expected to be the next major target of the flood.
